million are needed to meet existing emergency deficiencies. Highway people are hoping fervently that new studies and more money will be forthcoming from January's legislative session.

They want to widen and repair main arteries; build new bridges. East-west highways in line for improvement are U.S. 16, 12, 2, and 28. North-south arteries badly in need of attention, are routes 13, 10, 31, 131.

"More policemen are needed," says State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs. At present only 225 state officers are available for patrol duty each 24 hours. The Commissioner is asking for 150 more. Allowing for sickness and leave time, 124 additional troopers would then divide each day's duties.

State traffic laws are subject to re-examination. A new drivers' license law took effect October 2. Safety groups are considering the advisability of a speed limit, the training of young drivers and other steps.

Improvements will benefit motorists. Turnpikes and expressways will permit safer, faster driving. Such super highways are under study for routes from Detroit to Chicago and Detroit to Toledo.

Additional lanes on present roads will mean less congestion.

Money to finance the Mackinac Straits Bridge may be forthcoming soon because lenders are encouraged by the marked increase in traffic between peninsulas. Mr. Frontice Brown, chairman of the bridge authority, reports that the Straits traffic for October was 20% higher than last year; that 1953's average will be about 12% more.

Income has increased by 60% over last year, mostly because price of ferry tickets was raised in May.

No short term project, efficient, safe highway systems are not expected overnight. It is a matter of years. Perhaps Commissioner Childs summed it accurately when he said, "No one group can solve the traffic problem. It'll take much effort by many people and over a long period of time."

Looking Ahead

meat at lower prices. And, as taxpayers, we'd all be relieved of subsidies.

In the South we raise lots of cotton. When the cotton market is held up rigidly to a price which the supply and demand does not justify, we see marginal producers on poor, worn-out or hillside land planting cotton. It is profitable — with government subsidies. Take away the subsidies and these farmers couldn't plant cotton and make a profit. They'd have to get into something in which they could hold their own in competition. Farmers of the South who long ago were obliged to diversify — ending their enslavement to cotton — have done better than before.

A case can be made, in some extraordinary circumstances, for short range subsidies. But government subsidies as a fixture in our economy are unsound. Also, subsidies spread. Give one group a subsidy and all other groups will, in time, demand them. The government takes the consumer's money and artificially boosts the price of, say, butter. The consumer buys it at the inflated price — inflated with his own money. He has less money to spend on normally priced goods and services, and the whole economy is thrown out of kilter.

Let's develop common-sense help for agriculture. And let's be sure the consumer's voice is heard. It's his money as well as the farmer's that is involved.
