THE MICHIGAN MIRROR

But the long-range program can fall flat on its face next year if the Legislature reduces appropriations for parks. The only way the program can be carried out is with a fixed amount of money available each year.

"We have fared reasonably well during the last few years, but we are not keeping up with the demands for wholesome outdoor recreation for people of our state," says Arthur C. Elmer, chief of the Michigan Department of Parks and Recreation Division.

"What we need more than anything else is a definite and continuing source of income for park development, maintenance and operation."

If it does, the Nakkula bill probably will be introduced again next year. Its chances of becoming law should be much better than because lawmakers will have had a full year to think over the idea. At first, several Ways and Means Committee members felt the bill would set up another restricted fund. But by the time their fears were soothed, it was late in the session.

Michigan has one of the finest systems of public parks in the country. But in order to maintain its leadership, it must continue to improve the present parks and add new recreation areas south of the Muskegon-Bay City line. Ever-expanding population in this part of the state creates continuously growing needs.

More than 14 million persons visited state parks during 1953, according to official figures. Park attendance is expected to reach the 20 million mark by 1960. "Good, clean outdoor recreation areas are just as important today as water, sewage and housing," says Mr. Elmer. "There is nothing wrong with Michigan's park system that wise financing by the Legislature can't cure."

WASHDAY is always

WISHDAY!

WISH YOU WERE SOMEONE ELSE?
WISH YOU WERE SOMEPLACE ELSE?

Have you felt like this on washday? And the day before? And the day after? Just thinking of lugging, lifting, pinning and praying that your clothes will dry, can make you feel mighty low. Throw off washday gloom. Dry your clothes in an automatic gas clothes dryer... clothes dry faster and better.

Ways To Identify Gems To Be Seen On Wayne TV

It might sound easy, but can you tell the difference between a diamond and a synthetic? A ruby and a garnet? Emerald and jade? This Saturday, April 10, Wayne University television will show viewers how to identify valuable gems on the current TV series, Nature's Treasure Trove.

Dr. Willard Parsons, chairman of the geology department, will use a costly collection of stones to demonstrate how geologists identify them. The show may be seen from 11 to 11:15 a.m. over WJLB-TV, channel 2.

The final show of the "Through the Microscope" biweekly series will be telecast over the same channel on Saturday from 10:30 to 11 a.m.
