It's Our Opinion

What Does Memorial Day . . .

mean to you? A long week-end . . . a colorful parade . . . a picnic with friends, a family reunion. Yes, all this and more, we hope!

It is a day when Americans can enjoy the privileges and the pleasures of our democratic way of life. But as we join together for this day of leisure, we must not forget the purpose and the reason for its being. While we putter in the garden or head out to the lake for a happy outing with the family, other Americans rest quietly in military cemeteries throughout the world.

They lost their lives in the battle to preserve this way of life we enjoy. These Americans didn't want to die . . . they fought to live. They dreamed of the day they might return to the long week-ends, the colorful parades, the picnic with friends, and the family reunions! But they knew that the road was long and rough and that some would have to fall before the battle could be won.

No, they did not want to sacrifice their lives . . . they wanted to come home. But they wanted to come home as free men to live in a free country. They, as well as millions of others, have come home as free men to live in a free country, regardless of where their cross may be. They will not die, as long as we remember!

An All Out Effort . . .

will be made this week-end to save your life. The final outcome, however, is going to be up to you!

During the coming Memorial Day week-end millions of Michigan citizens will be on our roads and highways. If predictions come true, many will die and many more will spend painful hours in a hospital as a result of auto accidents. Will one of those many be you? Wait a minute . . . don't just shrug it off. Think it over!

Any one of us can have an accident, even you. It might not be your fault, but that doesn't bring back a loved one, or ease the pain in a hospital bed. The idea is to prevent an accident, not point fingers afterward and the best way to prevent them is to realize that they can happen to you. Remember, every time you slide behind that wheel . . . you take your life in your hands.

Every available police officer will be on the road during the week-end in an effort to upset the fearful predictions. Remember, he is there to protect you. If he slows you up . . . if he reminds you of a violation . . . if he gives you a ticket, there is probably a good reason. Just consider yourself lucky. That ticket may well be a permit to continued life. It may be, that is, if you take the warning and advice.

All the police in the world, as well as all the tickets and all the warnings, cannot save lives by themselves. The final decision between life and death is up to you . . . the man behind the wheel. Most accidents can be prevented if we use our heads, if we observe the rules of the road, if we respect the other fellow.

All an out effort will be made this week-end to save your life. Make sure that it isn't in vain!

The Latest . . .

pineapple to be dropped in the lap of Congress would be rather amusing if it wasn't so serious.

A new House Bill, introduced by Rep. John Dingell of Michigan, would ban cigarette, cigar, and all other tobacco advertising in newspapers and periodicals as well as broadcast media. The loss of revenue by the various media is only a small part of the consequences which would result. The restriction of private enterprise, and the terrific reduction in Federal income, are of far more important concern to every citizen.

It is only a short step from the banning of tobacco advertising to prohibiting the promotion of lawful drugs, hardware, appliances, men's clothing, ladies ready-to-wear and chewing gum. Competitive enterprise, reinforced by fair advertising practices, is the backbone of our economy and the strength of our prosperity.

Before we toss up the sponge on our enterprise system, we had better look it over. We might get a face full when it all comes back down again.

It's Time He Joined the Others

Dissension in conservation administration has rocked up some lively controversies during recent years . . . and more can be expected until some changes are made.

This seems the opinion of several newspaper people close to the scene as well as other observers who have watched the wrangling.

A rugged fight was expected at the most recent meeting of the Conservation Commission May 6 and 7 at Higgins Lake. That it failed to take place doesn't mean that all the ingredients for continued controversy aren't still present.

Basic trouble seems to be a deep seated difference in philosophies about the way the department should be run.

Gerald E. Eddy, director since 1951, believes that the future of conservation depends on technical application by trained men to the problems that develop. He depicts the most fundamental problem at present as "supplying more game and fish to a rapidly increasing population with more time to spend in the woods and with money to spend on outdoor equipment and trips."

This approach conflicts squarely, consistently and all too often with attitudes usually championed by Conservationists Joseph Rabbity, who has been described as "the practical approach" as contrasted with administration policies based on sound scientific research. Rabbity does not exactly ignore research.

LOOKING AHEAD
GEORGE S. BENSON
President - Looking Ahead Club
Saginaw, Michigan

Every nationally-known person achieved success in raising the growth of Communist power and the spread of Communist propaganda in America warns that the American people still are dangerously susceptible to the means by which this is done. Herbert Philbrick, of the New York Herald Tribune, who served nine years as an FBI counsellor deep within the Communist apparatus, has made a serious study of this national apathy. He says that it is permitting the Communists to continue to win in their conspiracy to control the world.

"This particular apathy and this neglect on the part of the people is the one greatest single problem facing the free world today," Philbrick said in a lecture at Harding College. "I think the first problem is simply that the American people find an inability to conceive the mind of a Communist."

"This was a deeply secret school, so secret that not only was its existence not known to average American people walking about Boston but was also unknown to rank and file Communist Party members. We were talked, we were screened, we were examined, we were questioned until finally 17 of us were selected to attend these schools. Once the classes began the reason for the secrecy and the security became very apparent."

"At these training schools we were taught not simply the tenets of Marxism-Leninism-Stalinist doctrine with which most folks are familiar, but also in very specific, in very direct terms: the duty, the thought and the action for every single Communist to work towards and to prepare for the day of the violent overthrow and violent revolution and destruction of the United States by force and violence."

"It's difficult for American people to conceive that anybody could be teaching and believing this. But when you sit in these secret, spiritual meetings, as I did, and when you hear these characters discussing these matters (strategy for violent revolution in the U. S. A.) in very practical terms and meaning it, then believe me the cold sweat begins to run down your spine. These boys mean business. They always have; they always will. And when they talk of violence and bloodshed, the comrades are talking about your blood."

Another cause of the apathy, said Philbrick, is that the Communists want this spot to continue undisturbed and therefore they use their great propaganda apparatus and the science of thought-shaping - cybernetics - to discount in the minds of Americans the true danger of the Communist conspiracy. They use the Communist fronts likewise to attract prominent non-Communist dupes who then help them to convince the great masses of unformed people that "all the noise about Communism is unnecessary . . . it's no real threat . . . so let's forget it and work at more important things."

"And yet, as Philbrick says, the world conspiracy of Communism which began with a mere 30,000 members in 1917 now has 100,000,000 people with a brutal iron hand; and during every day since 1917."

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (May 30, 1954)
National Commander Visits
Groves - Walker Post No. 314, American Legion, of Farmington, achieved a unique honor among the smaller legion posts of the country this week by having Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, pay them a visit Tuesday. It is believed that the Farmington Post is the smallest which the national commander has ever found time to visit. He stopped off on the way to Lansing.

BEST SHAPE EVER
A tentative budget was presented to the Farmington City Commission at its meeting Monday, accompanied by a statement from City Clerk N. H. Power that the city is in the best financial shape it has seen in years. This is true despite the fact that the tax rate remains about the same as last year's rate of 16 dollars per thousand and some property evaluations have been cut. According to Clerk Power, every obligation will be paid under the budget in addition to taking care of debts carried over from the previous year. This is possible due to economies in the handling of the city labor force needed, the clerk stated.

TEX YEARS AGO (June 2, 1944)
Salvage Rally
A Salvage Rally will be held Thursday, June 8, by the Township Salvage Committee at the Farmington High School gymnasium starting at 8:00 p.m. Part of a drive to increase salvage collections in the township, a display of the many useful materials that can be made from salvaged items will be shown, followed by war movies and cartoons.

A BROAD LINE
A broad line could be seen in Farmington all last week but it was not the type usually thought of. This broad line was the result of a bakers' strike in Detroit bakeries, causing large numbers to line up daily at the Farmington Bakery for their bread needs. A ration of two loaves per customer had to be put into effect and still the bakery could not meet the entire demand.

FIVE YEARS AGO (June 2, 1949)
One Dies, Four Injured
Holiday traffic claimed the life of one man and resulted in injury to four others in a three-car crash on U. S. 16 west of Novi Sunday night. The accident occurred when one driver, passing on a hill, sidwinded the faulty car and went out of control, crashing into a third auto. At least four other minor accidents were reported over the holiday week-end.

Zoning Ordinance
A definite campaign for a zoning ordinance in Farmington Township began to take shape this week under the sponsorship of the North Farmington Civic Association. Work is now being done to organize a township-wide Zoning Commission and to enlist voters from all parts of the township to attend the meeting. A majority of township voters must approve the move by vote before any real action can be taken.
