

MSC HORTICULTURIST OFFERS TIPS ON SPRAYING 'BACK-YARD' ORCHARD

What's the best "all-purpose" spray mixture to use on just a few fruit trees in the back yard? That's a question homeowners are asking Michigan State College horticulturists these days.

Horticulturist Arthur E. Mitchell has this advice for people who want to mix their own all-purpose spray: Use one and a half level teaspoons of 74 to 76 per cent ferbam, three teaspoons of 50 per cent wettable methoxychlor and two tablespoons of 25 per cent wettable malathion. Those amounts are mixed together per gallon of water. You can substitute three level tablespoons of 50 per cent wettable captan for the ferbam.

But, says Mitchell, many people may find it more convenient to buy a commercial "all-purpose" spray. It is available at most hardware stores.

He suggests that the spray, either the commercial preparation or your own mixture, should be applied at intervals of a week to two weeks during the season. How often you should apply the spray depends on how favorable the weather is for disease and insect development. The spray can be applied up to two weeks before harvest.

It's good for grapes and raspberry bushes as well as fruit trees.

Baby Red Foxes Show No Concern Over Sound

An upper peninsula youngster captured four lively red fox pups in a den near Grand Marais recently and reports the animals show no apparent concern when sharp sounds are made nearby.

Sam Lambert, 14, of Grand Marais, dug the pups out of their hole and is keeping them temporarily. They are now about seven weeks old.

He reports that a cap pistol fired six inches from the pups causes no alarm. The animals neither flinch nor blink at the sounds.

Conservation game workers say this seems common for the first two months of life. During that period, fox ears lie flat. After that, the ears are developed and the animals become more sensitive to sound.

Adult foxes held in captivity, game men say, are continually nervous and sharply aware of sounds made near their pens.

No Sale!

Right in front of Granny White's beautiful old house on Maple Avenue there's a brand-new sign: "Antiques, Inquire Within."

Now—don't get excited, Granny explained it all the other night—after we settled down in her parlor, me with my temperate beer, Granny with her tea.

I asked her if she was really going in the antique business. "Oh, no," says Granny, "I wouldn't sell anything. I put that sign up so folks would come in and talk—and look around. If they insist on a price, I tell them some outside."

geous figure! I guess I just like people," she said.

From where I sit Granny can be excused for her little ruse. She may be in her eighties, but her mind is young—and open. She's the kind of person who's made this town so wonderful. Granny not only likes people—but she respects them and their preferences and opinions. Come to think of it, "liking" and "respecting" mean much the same thing, don't they?

It makes you feel like the man you are

It is, as the psychologists tell us, an extension of a man's own personality.

It reflects what you feel, what you like, what you are.

So we ask you to take the wheel of a Buick ROADMASTER like the one shown here—for it is, we have found, the automobile chosen more and more by those who are definitely moving ahead in the world.

You will find it a car that fairly breathes success.

From its size and its breadth and the magnificent modernity of its styling, you know it is a car of custom stature—and so does the watching world.

The wondrous windshield is a pride in itself. You don't just see the view—you command it.

You will find it, too, a car of luxurious obedience.

From the moment you ease your foot down on the pedal, you take immediate mastery of the road and of distance.

And you know it—in the silken whip of Twin-Turbine Dynaflo, the might of Buick's greatest horsepower, the magic cushioning of coil springs on all four wheels, the exhilarating ease of Safety Power Steering at your hand.

But with all this, you buy with prudence when you buy a ROADMASTER.

For—though it is, and looks, custom production—it sells for the lowest price-per-pound in the fine-car field. And so wise an investment makes you feel even more like the man you are.

Drop in, or phone us this week, and we'll gladly arrange a demonstration.
