the Livonia branch of the American Association of Uni-versity Women. "I can put women in the community more in touch with the college that way," she said, "and I can learn more about what's needed."

Another kind of move in the same direction will come this Saturday when she joins women of Thilly Church of the Brethren in a picnic discussion meeting. Her particular contribution to that session will be participating with Peggy Weaver, teacher in Livonia School District, in a discussion of "Women in Church-Past and Present."

Sister Margaret also belongs to the Livonal Minjusterial Association and recently was elected to be its vice president next year. On the Schooleraft campus, she works with Newman Center Judy Kaltz to make the center an important part of student life. "When you watch the activities that go on in Newman House, you realize how much community colleges have changed in the just few years." Sister Margaret said. "We try to make it a place to meet, get ideas and go on from there."

Because Newman Center is the only student center on campus, Sister Margaret and Miss Kaltz try to make it a
