O.L.S. Girl Scouts, Brownies Enjoy Christmas Parties

Girl Scout and Brownie Troops of Our Lady of Sorrows Parish spent the past week taking part in Christmas celebrations.

Girls of Troops 175 and 176 spent Sunday, December 19, caroling and enjoying a Christmas party. Under the leadership of Mrs. Louis Leonard, Mrs. Riddell, Mrs. Hector LeBlanc and Mrs. Marie Leno, the girls traveled by bus to St. Williams and Whitehall Conventual Homes where they sang for the patients.

On their return to the parish hall they were greeted by committee women and mothers who served them hot chocolate and candy. An exchange of gifts followed with notebooks engraved with the Girl Scout emblem being given each girl by her leader. Gifts made by the girls for their parents were taken home.

Brownies of Troop 468 held their Christmas party Saturday, December 18, under the leadership of Mrs. John Petermark. A Christmas tree centerpiece and candy canes decorated the table. Christmas cookies provided by Mrs. Joseph Kohler were served. World pins were awarded the girls by their leader.

At the last meeting of the troop on Wednesday, December 15, a flag ceremony and investiture ceremony were conducted. Sister Ann and Margaret Riddell were welcomed into the troop.

Troops 170 and 228 held their Christmas party on Wednesday, December 15. Mrs. Fred Leno, at Mrs. Duffy provided popcorn, snowmen and scrapbooks as gifts for the girls of Troop 170. Decorated candy jars adorned the tables. Treats of ice cream, cookies and candy canes were given.

Troop 228, under Mrs. Boatman, played a tree trimming contest, played games and sang songs. Christmas cookies, ice cream and candy were given. Gifts made by the girls for their parents were taken home.

LOVE LEARNED BY GIVING, RECEIVING, EXPERT EXPLAINS

Would it surprise you to know that none of us fall into love? We learn to love just as we learn to walk and talk.

Dr. Elmer Knowles, of Michigan State College's department of home management and child development, explains it this way: "We grow into love and it grows in us beginning with birth. So most of us have had considerable experience in loving and being loved by the time we feel grown-up enough to get married."

Dr. Knowles goes on to make these points: As children we learned to love mom and dad and our sisters and brothers. Then we learned to love our playmates and uncles who brought us presents and friends of the family. Most of us became very fond of one or more of our school teachers. And then came the first big crush of puppy love.

Even though we know what love is, it is very difficult to explain it to someone else. So how do you know it's love?

Dr. Knowles says research findings and the feelings of parents and students indicate this: Chances are that you are in love if you are suited to one another and have much in common, if parents approve of the match, if your whole personality is involved, if there is a "we" feeling and mutual trust, if you are realistic, and if the relationship can stand the test of time.

Love tends to involve the entire personality. On the other hand, Dr. Knowles explains infatuation as focusing on a few traits — mostly physical. When young couples enjoy each other only in a parked car in the moonlight, they discover they have little in common in everyday life.

True love is outgoing. When a couple brings new energy and ambition into each other's lives — that indicates real love rather than infatuation.

Christmas Seals Known To People

You may think of the Christmas Seal as an American tradition, but facts prove that the tiny stamp of health is a world-wide affair. The Tuberculosis and Health Society says.

Many countries have organizations selling seals to battle TB. In the United States, the National Tuberculosis Association has 3,000 local organizations working on the problem of TB control in their communities.

Richard L. Lea, executive director of the TB and Health Society, points out that in many countries the Christmas Seal is sold by official government rather than by an unofficial, voluntary association.

The Seals are different, too, he said. "This year, for instance, the American Christmas Seal features children, joining hands in health around the Christmas tree. This is far from being like the French Christmas Seals of the past, which have featured a small advertisement for a brand of toothpaste or some similar item."

"Our records tell of many other unusual seals. One old German Christmas Seal pictures a man coughing while facing another man who is stricken with fear because he sees a symbolic skull in the germs being coughed at him. This was back in the 'fear' days. Some of the other nations producing Christmas Seals for their own TB battles include Ceylon, Ireland, Canada, England, Palestine, Turkey, Denmark, Spain, Netherlands, Finland, Norway and United South Africa.

Notably, one part of the world now 'appears to have no tuberculosis Christmas Seal,' Mr. Lea reported. "Apparently, Russia had discouraged Christmas Seals, and has stamped them out in other countries now behind the Iron Curtain."

"Here in America, the Christmas Seal remains with us as a symbolic part of our holiday, making an ever-widening circle of friends for the fight against tuberculosis. When we buy Christmas Seals, we're taking part in a world-wide tradition."

If you have not received your Christmas Seal call the TB and Health Society at Woodward 1-1837 and a supply will be sent you.

HISTORY, LEGEND ADD FLAVOR TO OLD 'TOM' TURKEY

To give your turkey an 'out-of-this-world flavor,' baste the bird with historical fact stuff with tradition, and garnish with just a touch of legend. Here are some of the facts and some unknowns about turkeys. For instance, how did a native of America come to be named for another land? Possibly the red wattle on a turkey's head suggested the red fez commonly worn by men of Turkey, or possibly someone with imaginative ears heard the word "turk" in the rapid call of the turkey. Language experts have found similar words in one of the languages of India and in Hebrew, "tuka" and "tukki," meaning a long skirt; perhaps the turkey's long tail suggested a skirt and "turki" was given a Yankee twist into "turkey." Perhaps.

While cooking a turkey out of the supplies that are so plentiful this year, you might speculate on when mankind first ate turkey. It seems certain that American Indians ate turkey several thousand years ago. In northern Europe there are drawings of turkeys made about 1300, suggesting that when the Norsemen came to this continent a couple hundred years ahead of Columbus, they took home some turkeys as souvenirs and there are definite records that Cortez, the Spanish explorer, sent turkeys from Mexico back to King Charles V, about the year 1519. But, as you eat a plump, meaty 1934 model turkey, you can be sure Charles V never had it this good.

"TAME" WILD GAME NOT GOOD PETS, LITTLE GIRL FINDS

A strong moral lesson about wildlife was contained in a recent report from Missouri, showing what happens when wild animals are taken too lightly or forgotten entirely.

A woman near Gainesville, Missouri, was attracted by the screams of her two-year-old daughter, playing in the back yard. The mother checked and found the girl cornered by a buck deer that repeatedly reared and struck at the child.

The woman grabbed the family 22-caliber rifle and dropped the animal with a shot through the head.

It was then learned that the deer had been something of a pet in the neighborhood after being found, nursed and fed as a fawn.

SEASONAL BUYING CUTS MEAT COSTS, AUTHORITIES STATE

Buy meat when it's cheap — eat when it's dear. That's how to save meat dollars.

Easier to say than do? Not at all.

According to authorities, meat supplies are as seasonal as fresh fruits and vegetables. When the supply is largest is the time to buy, feast on the meat, and have it on hand to eat when prices pump upward.

For example, few hogs come on the market in the hot summer months, so pork is scarce and most expensive at that time.

The best time to freeze and store pork is late fall or early winter — November through January. Hog marketings are at their peak, and so dressed pork prices are then lowest.

For the same reason, low-grade beef — the kind you buy for good hamburgers — sells lowest in October and November, while choice high-grade beef — for steaks and roasts — is most plentiful and cheapest in May, June, and July.

Most lambs are born in the spring and are ready for market in the fall. Therefore, October through December is your best time to buy lamb.

If you want stewing hens, August and September are your best bet. But if you're interested in fryers, you'll find them most plentiful earlier in the summer, June and July.

The moral is clear. Get to know when various meats and poultry are "in season." Time your buying for your home freezer with the period of largest supply, and save from 25 to 50 cents out of every dollar you now spend for meat.
