CHICKEN, PORK, LAMB GOOD MEAT BUYS NOW; SALAD VEGETABLE PRICES DOWN

Early summer picnics or outdoor feasts have started, and it is becoming more tempting with the increased supply of broilers and fryers arriving from the southern producing areas. West of the chicken have dropped as much as 4 and 5 cents per pound. Slicing hens are also holding attractive prices in some markets.

At this time of the year much emphasis is also placed upon all types of salads at very reasonable prices. However, such forerunner cuts of beef as blade, arm, and English-cut chuck roasts are still the most economical choices.

Penny-wise shoppers who wish to stretch their dollar will want to take advantage of the many exceptional values in fresh lake fish. Many fish-lovers wait for this season when jumbo pickerel appear on the market for less than a quarter per pound. Top quality smelt and perch may also be found.

Pork is still good news in the meat market. Supplies are well above last year, and prices are unusually low for this time of the year. Outstanding values can be purchased for any meal from the professor, for breakfast, for frankfurters for the picnic, to pork loins and Boston butt roasts for family dinners.

Prices of many cuts of lamb are easier on the pocketbook than ever. Supplies are ample and plentiful and provide much flavoring and some meat at a low cost. Roast leg-of-lamb or a lamb shoulder roasts are tasty suggestions for any meal.

Spring time suggests salad time, and produce markets are cooperating with increased quality and decreased prices on many salad vegetables. The supply of hot material is steadily improving and lower costs are anticipated. Wise food shoppers will recognize the exceptional value in cucumbers which have dropped in price from around 25 cents each to 3 for 25c.

It also takes only a few cents to add large heads of lettuce, pascal celery, new carrots, cello-carrots, or young Michigan.

N'VILLE OIL FIELD SHIFTS OVER TO GAS PRODUCTION

The Northville oil field was shifted to natural gas production on May 5.

Supervisor of wells Gerald E. Eddy announced that a change in status recommended by the state advisory board places primary values in gas, not oil, shifts responsibility of administration to the public service commission and permits a number of capped wells to be opened for production.

The move is the result of a falling off in oil production, said Eddy. It is now more economical to produce gas in the field. Where oil continues as the primary product, the supervisor of wells retains administrative responsibility.

Temporary production of 200,000 cubic feet of gas per 24-hour day will be permitted until a production permit is issued by the public service commission.

If you don't say anything, you won't be called on to repeat it.
