Facing Up . . .

to a difficult situation is not always as easy as it sounds. But face it we must, if a logical solution to the problem is to be found. Such a situation now exists as far as additional school facilities in the growing Farmington District are concerned, and many people are asking "What is the answer?"

Unfortunately, we have no crystal ball to tell us what is going to happen in the future, but we do have some pretty positive indications to go by. These are exceedingly important to our analysis of the situation. We know what the present holds and if we can properly evaluate the future, some definite conclusions can be reached. These are the steps which must be taken if we are to find an answer to the problem.

It is human nature to go around a problem if there is any way to do it. Invariably we look for someone else to help us out. When a situation becomes extremely difficult we look to the State or Federal Government for assistance or we talk about restrictions to slow up progress. This is not intended as a criticism of anyone in particular, because we are all guilty of this type of thinking at one time or another. The problems of our growing community and our school district belong to us and us alone, and we must face them head-on. To delay the eventual solution is only to delay progress.

It is a fact that, in order to meet the growing demands, an improved tax base must be established. We can not continue to finance the improvements which we now need and are going to continue to need on residential development alone. This has been proven time and time again in community after community. It is essential that we begin now with a community-wide planning and promotion program designed to encourage selected commerce and industry into our area. This will require both leadership and foresight, but it is up to us to accomplish it. No one else is going to do it for us.

It is also a fact that adequate sites must be selected now for additional school buildings and other public facilities, while property is still available. We believe that this can and must be accomplished through the cooperation of land developers. If a specific site was set aside in each large subdivision for school facilities and sold to the district on a cost basis, it would not only ease the situation considerably but would greatly enhance the value and attractiveness of the development.

These are positive suggestions designed to meet the challenge that is before us. It is our opinion that they provide at least a partial solution to the question, "What is the answer?"

for ammunition in the fight against polio is now moving into its final week. According to unofficial reports, the people of the Farmington community have responded to the call with generosity and enthusiasm.

We hope that even greater gains will be made in the remaining few days. The annual Mothers' March on Thursday and the March of Dimes Dance at the Legion Hall on Saturday are designed to add emphasis to this worthy cause. Support them both for your own sake and for the sake of your friends and neighbors.

Tremendous progress has been made in the battle against this dreaded disease, and we stand on the threshold of even greater advancements in the immediate future. We can't afford to let down now has been taken toward the eventual solution of the growing water and sewer problem in the southeastern section of Michigan. Last Thursday, the supervisors of six counties in this area accepted a free offer from the National Sanitation Foundation to conduct a water, sewer and drainage survey of Southeastern Michigan.

This survey may well form the foundation for a program which will bring permanent relief to this rapidly growing section of the State. The time has come when we must look for new facilities in the handling of our water, sewage and drainage problems. Because of the scope of the problem, a combined and cooperative effort on the part of many communities will be necessary. This is now being done and it's an important step in the right direction.

POLICE AND ARMED state officials are again pounding on themes of highway safety.

For the third year in the last ten, more than 2,000 have been killed in Michigan traffic and law enforcement officers admit they are unable to understand.

They point to the speed zones, educational campaigns of local levels, extra patrols, the use of the Michigan National Guard on week ends and new safety devices in automobiles.

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs is working on a plan to install movie cameras in patrol cars and institute a "saturation patrol," one car every ten miles around the clock on high accident stretches of highway.

"We're finding more and more that the final answer to safety lies with the driver," he said.

He estimated that the 13-month highway safety campaign, which started December 1, saved 38 lives — the decrease in the number of traffic deaths from December 1 of last year.

But the 208 November toll was far out of proportion to the year before, assuring Michigan that the total for 1958 would go beyond 2,000.

Here's what Childs says about drivers:

"If drivers would only obey the rules of the road, look out for the other fellow and use common sense and caution, most accidents would not occur."

"But unfortunately, all will not do that. The question that remains to be answered is how many won't, and as a result, will get into trouble."

Experts have been trying for years to discover how to make drivers as safe as their vehicles.

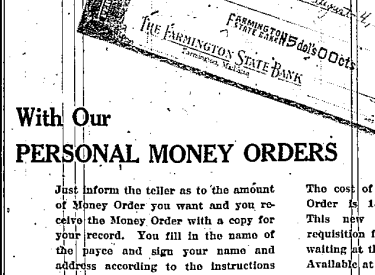

Michigan State University and the University of Michigan both are now studying driver attitudes.

The forces that cut his efficiency in any given situation on the highway.

Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, director of the crime/detection laboratory for the state health department, says that up to 40 per cent of the accidents involve people who have been drinking.

Others say that cars have been built with too much power for the human mind and body to control. Automotive leaders answer the extra power is a safety factor.

Here's another factor: Secretary

Many people are not aware of the fact that all the Communist leaders from Joseph Stalin to Bulganin have declared that Socialism must be established as the first step into Communism. They have so declared repeatedly in their official textbooks and they have followed up these declarations with Socialist action. The Communists have worked for Socialism in every country which they have infiltrated or have taken over. In fact, Marxian Socialism (not Communism) exists everywhere the Reds hold power.

We call it Communism, but the economic system employed is only the first phase of Communism — which is Socialism. This fact and others in the interrelationship of Communism and Socialism are dramatized in the fifth film of "The American Adventure" educational series just produced by the National Education Program for the schools of America, for TV and other uses. The fifth film is entitled "A Look at Socialism."

The interrelationship of the two major Left Wing movements is established out of their own literature and through the activities of the Socialist and Communist movements during the last 100 years.

The film on Socialism shows England's Socialist - Labor Party and the record of its administration in England from 1945 until October, 1951, to illustrate both the theory and the reality of Socialism. The Socialist - Labor Party's platform is almost identical, plan for plan, with the platform published on Page 145 of the "Manifesto" of the Communist Party (Special Centennial Edition, George Allen and Unwin, Ltd., London).

The Socialist - Labor Party said, in its centennial edition of the "Manifesto" "To mark the centenary of its first publication in 1848, the Labour Party issued this important special edition of the 'Communist Manifesto'." The Labour Party regards this statement of Marx and Engels as one of the great historical documents in socialist history, which has had an immense influence on socialism as it is expressed today in so many countries of the world.

The film on Socialism shows that at the very heart of the Socialist promise — "we'll make a paradise for the workers" — it has miserably failed. It shows that the living standard of the Socialist Englishman is about one-third as high as that of the American living under capitalism. In the sixth film, "A Look at Communism," the Russian dreamland of "a paradise for the worker" is closely examined. Socialism has progressed in Russia to the inebriate enslavement of the entire citizenry in a brutal dictatorship.

This sixth film, noting the interrelationship of Communism and Socialism, examines the difference. The difference is in the theory. The film takes up one by one the three basic elements in the Communist philosophy: (1) dialectical materialism; (2) economic determinism; and (3) the

The question is how to coordinate all the danger factors into a package and find answers.

The legislature made a start during the special session in November with a new speed limit of 65 in daylight hours at 55 at night starting February 3, money for 200 more state police, and cash to pay for driver education programs in the schools.

Tighter violations records were ordered in an attempt to weed out bad drivers before they become accident statistics.

There will be more proposals in the 1959 legislative session. They will include new attempts to legalize the chemical test for drunks as evidence in court for or against the driver, and bills already have been prepared for the proposal.

The state safety commission is scheduling 14 regional meetings to conduct grass-roots safety campaign.

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (January 29, 1931)

Bus Service
 Bus service will begin on Grand River Avenue between Farmington and Five Points by the Detroit Department of Street Railways on Sunday morning. It was disclosed last week by Del A. Smith, general manager of the D. S. R. The fare will be 30 cents, ten cents higher than the streetcar fare. Buses will run on the same schedule as the streetcars did, Smith stated. Three fare zones will be used with a change of ten cents for each zone. The first zone will be from Five Points to Fourth Gate Road, the second from Fourth Gate to Tuck Road, and the third from Tuck Road to Farmington Road. Two 40-passenger buses will be in operation initially, and more will be added if business warrants the increase.

Election Battle
 With the annual primary election in Farmington still a month away, indications are that lively battles will take place for the various offices to be filled on March 2. Opposing candidates are already in the field for two of the most important offices, and it is reported that there will be contests for all Township offices. Competing for the supervisor's position will be incumbent Arthur P. Coe and Ward Engle, justice of the peace. Highway Commissioner Clayton Goers will be opposed for re-election by George Leet.

TEN YEARS AGO (January 31, 1946)
School Vote
 Farmington voters will vote on two proposals in the forthcoming school election as outlined in a resolution passed by the Farmington School Board at a meeting held January 21. One proposal would raise the school tax by five mills for five years to provide a building and site fund for a new high school. Because this would exceed the 15-mill tax limitation established by law, a two-thirds vote of the electors will be required to approve the action. A date for the special school election has not yet been set.

First Concert
 On Wednesday, February 8, the newly organized Farmington Male Chorus will present its first concert. John Soderberg, first chair cellist with the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra of Detroit, will appear as guest artist. The concert will be held at the high school gymnasium beginning at 8:15 p.m.

FIVE YEARS AGO (February 1, 1951)
Township Election
 A total of 15 candidates have filed petitions for Township offices, 14 on the Republican ticket and one on the Democratic side. Two persons have filed petitions for the supervisor's position. Harry McIsaac, clerk, and Clayton Goers, treasurer, are unopposed. Three petitions were filed for justice, six for constables, and two for the board of review. The general Township primary election will be held on February 19.

School Election
 The Clarenceville School District will hold a special election on a mileage increase April 2. The date was set by the board of education at a special meeting held last week. The proposition to be voted upon is whether or not the board will authorize the levy five mills for five years to cover the increased cost of school operation. Registration deadline for the special election will be March 1.
