Vera Blanchfield of Old Colony Road returned last Saturday from a Florida vacation. She drove down with Mary McGuire of Overdale Court and the Lee Haynes of Southfield Township. On arriving in Ft. Lauderdale, they made their way to the yacht MarAnn, which is owned by Mary's father-in-law, J. P. McGuire. Vera spent three enjoyable days as their guest.

The two Woodcreek ladies parted there as Vera went to Coral Gables to spend a week with her other, Lloyd Jaeger. She spent another week at Ft. Meyers with the Michael Kellys, formerly of Orchard Lake Road. Vera flew home from Florida. On arriving home she found her husband, Lorne, laid low by the flu bug. Lorne is now back on his feet again, feeling much better.

Irene McGuire stayed on the MarAnn and they set out to watch the Miami-Nassau sailing races. Her husband, Wilfred, had been previously and entered the boat, the "Kan-Du." Bad weather conditions soon became a problem and the Kan-Du dropped out before the finish of the race. The McGuire and the Haynes then boarded the Kan-Du for a leisurely cruise of the Bahamas, taking the Northwest passage. In quick succession all the outer islands, they came upon a cruiser laying in the Green Turtle Key. It was John Foster Dulles spending his vacation.

They enjoyed visiting the various outlying islands and getting to see how the natives really lived and worked. One island, called Hog Town, old fishermen were busily engaged in cleaning star fish. The trick was to get a hook into the opening on the underside of the fish and hold it open to clean out the meat. The stars were then soaked in lime and dried out to be sold to tourists and imported as decorative pieces.

It was somewhere at this point that Mary's vacation was interrupted by a wire from home. Tommy, one of her five boys, was ill with a throat infection. Making connections in an area where the telegraph key is the only means of communication was no easy task, but Mary was able to get back to the mainland within two days and fly home. They were happy to say that Tommy is well on his way to recovery.

The next cancer pad pinning meeting will be at the home of Grace Fisher on February 28. Helen Weightman of Millbrook Road is this month's chairman. Her workers are Ruth Weaver, June Bieker, Emma Coyle, Elma Sverston, Esther Nelson and Alice Clark.

Eighteen children helped Pam Weeden, of Old Colony Road, celebrate her eighth birthday on Saturday, February 11. Embarking on a hay ride to Roy's Ranch in the early afternoon, the children had a delicious (and ravenous) appetites for a delicious spaghetti supper awaiting them. Ice cream and birthday cake were served for dessert. The birthday children who attended were the three McCarthy boys, Jerry Thompson and Sarah and Horti Harton.

THE NEW - Brown's Super Market on Northwestern Highway east of Orchard Lake Road moved another step closer to completion early this week with the placing of steel beams. Workmen are shown putting a beam in place. The up-to-date, all-around grocery store is scheduled for completion the early part of this summer. The present Brown's store is located on the west side of Orchard Lake Road at the Northwest Highway intersection. Plans call for the opening of a drug store and other businesses adjacent to the super market.
