

Results Of Shopping Survey

"The introduction of shopping centers," it continued, "may bring about improved (shopping) facilities. Furthermore, those who indicated they buy at shopping centers state they buy 'shopping goods.' More than eight per cent of the people in Oakland County patronize Northland, and of these 84 per cent buy shopping goods."

In all, the survey covered some 22 communities in the county. Separate reports summarizing data for each of the major shopping areas covered by the study are expected to be released by the Bureau late this month.

PRINTS OF FILM ON STATE'S AUTUMN AVAILABLE TO CLUBS

A new 25-minute color motion picture entitled "Michigan - An Autumn Wonderland" has just been released by the Michigan Tourist Council, announced Robert J. Furlong, Council Executive Secretary.

Narrated by Mort Neff, well-known TV personality, the film conducts viewers on a scenic tour of the state's fall vacation areas. Scenes of hunting, fishing, sight-seeing, picture making and color touring show the variety of Michigan's autumn recreational attractions.

The autumn film is the third in a series of motion pictures produced by the Tourist Council for use in its nation-wide promotion of Michigan's year-around vacation offerings. On the basis of its "unique natural color appeal," Furlong anticipates "widespread acceptance of the new film. He explained that two previous Tourist Council motion picture releases have been seen by an estimated eight million persons in the two years they have been in circulation.

Color prints of "Michigan - An Autumn Wonderland" are available upon request and without cost to civic and professional groups, private clubs and television stations. Requests should be addressed to the Michigan Tourist Council, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing 4.

More than half those surveyed had lived in the county less than five years, with nearly one-third of those surveyed moved to the county from the neighboring Detroit area. Only 24 per cent of those included in the survey worked in the community where they lived. Of those employed outside their local community, 38 per cent derived their income from Detroit. The report said, "there appears to be a high correlation between the workers work and where they shop."

Noting that the Detroit metropolitan area was rapidly growing in population, the study stated "if the local merchants do not expand and progress to handle the increased population, then, efforts must be made to construct a shopping center."

PROGRAM STARTED TO CUT OAK WILT IN LOWER MICHIGAN

Oak wilt, a forest disease trying to get a foothold in southern Michigan woodlots, is in for a struggle with the state departments of Agriculture and Conservation.

Twenty-eight counties in the south half of the lower peninsula are being surveyed from Conservation Department planes to determine location of trees infected with oak wilt. Department of Agriculture ground crews will use results of the survey to find and kill these trees before the disease becomes widespread.

Conservation foresters point out that oak wilt is spotty in Michigan; not as prevalent as in neighboring states. But it is persistently taking two or three trees each year from many woodlots in southern counties. Primarily, the disease attacks red, black and pin oaks and kills them within two weeks.

Department of Agriculture workers, with consent of woodlot owners, girdle infected trees and treat them chemically to speed death and prevent roots from sprouting. Red, black and pin oaks within 50 feet of infected trees also are girdled and treated to break the chain of infection.
