INCREASED FEES for hunting and dishing licenses is the current aim of the Michigan Department of Conservation. Asking increases for most licenses, the commission ontends that since 1947 when cost of resident licenses was last raised costs of operation have skynocketed. In the words of the commission, the situation is "critical."

Increases asked include a raise from $1.50 to $2 for resident fishing licenses; from $2 to $3 for small game; and from $2.0 $3 for small game; and from $3.50 to $3 for deer licenses.

If the program were adopted the committion anticipates an additional $2,762,000 in new revenue.

Explaining the sharp increase in the cost of a trout stamp, commission spokesmen explain that the trout fisherman has never financed his full share of the cost of a trout stamp, commission spokesmen explain that the trout fisherman has never financed his full share of the cost for camp permits - from $8.50 to $10. However, spokesmen point out, this particular raise will only increase revenue by approximately $5,500 because of the limited number issued.
