

SIXTY-NINTH YEAR — NUMBER 5

FARMINGTON, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1956

Gill Road PTA Game Party Set

The Gill Road PTA is now completing plans for its second annual Games Party, to be held this Saturday evening, November 3, at 8 p.m. at the Gill Road School.

A cordial invitation has been extended to all in the community to attend.

An eventful social evening is planned with a variety of games, contests and events for all, with prizes to be awarded. Prizes to be given are now on display in the Detroit Edison window in Farmington.

Tickets for the party may be arranged for by calling GR. 4-4326.

Ladywood Mothers' Club
To Hear Psychologist

The Ladywood Mothers' Club will meet Monday, November 5, at 8 p.m., at Ladywood High School. Dr. Spencer B. Sterne, chief clinical psychologist at Wayne County Hospital since 1951, will speak on "Teen Age Psychology."

Dr. Sterne has studied at Yale, Wayne and Boston Universities, and is at present completing his Ph.D. at the University of Michigan.

Because the Mothers' Club feels fortunate in the opportunity of hearing Dr. Sterne and because his subject is one of great interest, the meeting has been opened to the general public.

Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Drive Now On To Send Care
Packages To 20 Million. Needy

Twenty million hungry people in 19 countries will be reached by the 1956 CARE Food Crusade, it was indicated recently.

Murray D. Lincoln, president of CARE, said the food will be delivered in 5,000,000 packages containing an average of 22 pounds of rice, beans, cereal, milk powder, corn meal and flour turned over to CARE by the U. S. Department of Agriculture out of America's farm surplus.

Packages for each country vary according to the diets and needs of recipients, but each package provides enough vital supplementary nourishment for a family of four for one month, he said.

The non-profit overseas aid organization is asking Americans to contribute at the rate of one dollar per package to cover costs of packing, handling and delivery in recipient countries.

One of its most significant features is that under CARE's unique system the name and address of the donor goes with every package delivered.

Countries which will receive packages are Greece, Italy, West Germany (and Berlin), Yugoslavia, Korea, Vietnam, Pakistan, India, Cambodia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras, Panama and Israel. The program includes aid to hundreds of thousands of refugees from Red China in Hong Kong and to nearly a million Arab refugees in Lebanon, Jordan, Syria and the Gaza Strip.

In each of the countries, Mr. Lincoln pointed out, CARE personnel work in cooperation with local agencies to plan distributions that insure maximum benefit for the neediest persons without regard to race, color or creed. Emphasis will be placed on reaching individuals, refugee families, the unemployed, widows and orphans, the aged, the red, victims of tuberculosis and other malnutrition diseases.

Where local conditions make it advisable, distributions will be made to institutions—schools, orphanages, hospitals and refugee camps.

The packages are now being assembled in CARE's Philadelphia warehouse and shipments have started. Distributions will be made overseas on a continuing basis extending over six to twelve months.

CARE, now in its eleventh year, has accumulated a total of 19,000,000 packages signed by people in more than 50 countries who have received CARE packages including not only food but textiles, soap, Help (tools) and other supplies. This vast person-to-person operation has resulted in massive correspondence between recipients and Americans and has proved one of the primary factors in CARE's record as an outstanding organization.

Donations to the 1956 CARE Food Crusade may be sent directly to CARE's world headquarters at 600 First Avenue, New York 16, or to CARE local offices in major U. S. cities. As a contribution in the public interest, principal railroad express offices will carry CARE orders.

Few Vacancies For Dale Carnegie
Course In Farmington Still Exist

Persons interested in improving their human relations skills and speaking abilities still have an opportunity to enroll in Farmington's new Dale Carnegie class, said Mrs. R. Brown, who is conducting the class. The class will swing into its introductory session at the Farmington High School tonight, November 1, at 7 p.m.

An announcement that a few vacancies still exist in the class was made by R. Lewis Brown, chairman in charge of the activity for the Farmington Junior Chamber of Commerce, the sponsoring organization. Normally, at an introductory session, such vacancies are filled and the class proceeds with an enrollment of 40 persons, he stated.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce cordially invites all residents who are interested in self-improvement to attend this session, as our guests," said Mrs. Brown. "Whether or not a person plans to enroll."

Mr. Brown pointed out that, while the Dale Carnegie course is seriously devoted to helping men and women improve their abilities and speed their progress in business of the professions, the training has its "fun side," too.

"There's nothing stiff or formal or stodgy about this training," said Mrs. Brown. "As a matter of fact, it's so entertaining and inspiring and moves at such a fast pace one is amazed at how fast the time flies."

"As the course progresses, the student is shown how to select subjects easy to talk about, how to build an effective talk on Dale Carnegie's famous 'Magic Formula,' how to participate in a round table conference and how to make appeals that get results."

"What's equally important, he is constantly coached in the fine art of winning friends and influencing people. Between sessions, he puts into practice the human relations principles he has learned, then comes back and tells the class what happened, as a result."

"The prime purpose of the course is to teach the highest-paid abilities in business and the professions—the ability to communicate ideas clearly and the ability to handle other people."

The course, Mr. Brown explained, is conducted in 14 weekly sessions, each about four hours in length. The same corps of instructors that teaches General Motors classes throughout southeastern Michigan will lead the Farmington class, he concluded.
