Ross and Florence Plewa report that the countryside was at its very loveliest for their trip to Washington, D. C. The cherry trees and all the spring flowers were in bloom, which, together with all the interesting sights that Washington has to offer, made the trip a memorable one.

They stopped for a tour of the historic battlegrounds of Gettysburg on the way down. Florence's son, Paul King, got along very well during his parents' absence. Michael King came home from Michigan State for Easter week-end, bringing a school friend with him.

Skywatchers for April 29 are: 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Audie Dreyer and Ruth Golla; 12 noon to 3 p.m., Alleyne Kinney and Ellen Allen; 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Pearl Dobson and Theresa McKay.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Ellen returned Good Friday from a three weeks' trip to Florida. They spent some time in Pompano Beach with Mr. Ellen's brother, then went on to Naples, a spot which appealed to them as the choicest Florida has to offer. The weather was marvellous, and strangely enough, they were greeted here with sunshine and balmy breezes, so the vacation was a most happy one.

All the family was together for Easter weekend at the Bob Weavers'. Son Bob came up for a six day leave from his base in Norfolk, Virginia. Their daughter, Ruth and her husband and Sheryl and Bill drove over from Grand Rapids for several days stay here.

It was fun while it lasted, but Emily Dynda heard a sight of relief Monday after the last guest had departed and peace and quiet descended on the household.

Guests during the previous week at the Dynda home were her cousin and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Polk of Foley, Minnesota. Mr. Polk's relatives came out to Detroit to visit with the guests, and there were numerous trips in to town to see various points of interest.

Son Jerry came home from University of Michigan for the week-end bringing with him a house guest, Douglas Swanson.

Guests for Easter Sunday dinner at the Mereshak home were John's mother, Mrs. Mary Mereshak, his sister, Helen Rose, an uncle, John Zelinski, also Betty's mother, Mrs. Barbara Sundry and her sister, Mrs. Marion Nega.

Marilyn Nelson flew to Washington, D. C. to visit friends over the weekend.

Water supply now ranks with labor and transportation as a key factor in determining plant location. One third of the nation's total plant spending for new construction in the past five years has been concentrated in the Great Lakes area.
