Takes Four Day Archaeology Field Trip

John M. Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Brown, of 52009 Nine Mile Road, recently took a four day camping trip as part of his training in archaeology at Arizona State College.

Camping out with other members of his class and the class instructor, they visited Mesa Verde National Monument and Chaco Canyon National Monument. They also saw some of the biggest pueblo ruins in the southwest and explored sites which they had been studying in the classroom.

The Mesa Verde ruins they visited were once occupied by prehistoric Indians for a great span of time from 500 to 1300 A.D. They also visited Pueblo Bonito, a prehistoric apartment house containing 700 rooms, which has sections of walls still standing that are five stories high.

To improve the golden moment of opportunity, they caught the sunset that is within our reach, is the great art of life. Johnson

there's nothing like a J2 Rocket!"

Olds Owners: Let me show you. This J2 Rocket* is like two engines under the hood.
Friends: Next trick—how does it work?
Olds Owners: It's a new progressive carburetor system: Gives you more economy... or extra power for safety. Take your choice.
Friends: Economy sounds swell... but with a big car like this...?
Olds Owners: You bet! They engineered the J2 Rocket Engine for our kind of driving... top efficiency at normal driving speeds because it's fueled by one carburetor.
Friends: How about that extra power?

Olds Owners: Give it 34 throttle and two extra carburetors cut in. It's mighty reassuring to know you've got that extra power in the bank.
Friends: I get it! Economy when you want it—power when you need it.
Olds Owners: Correct. But talking about it won't give you the whole story. This one you've got to drive. Climb in—let's go.
