Trans-America Set At Northville

Northville Downs will present Friday night, May 24, the $10,000 Trans-America Pace, one of the most important in the country which is sponsored by the harness "Tracks of America."

The Trans-America will be the most outstanding pace ever presented at Northville for the list of 30 nominees includes practically all of the best pacers in competition.

The event, No. 3 in the 10 race Spring series, will bring in the stars from New York, Maryland, Illinois, Ohio and California.

The Trans-America nomination list includes such elite as Noble Adios, 1956 winner of the Little Brown Jug, and Adioscot, who was second.

Until the entry box is opened, of course, Racing Secretary Bill Connors will not know definitely how many will race for the $10,000 prize, but he is expecting 10 or 12.

The rules of the Trans-America series provide that the 10 horses collecting the most points in the qualifying stakes will be eligible for the $10,000 finale at Yonkers Raceway in New York July 12.

Looking Ahead

country. But a far greater number are not yet participating in this basic responsibility. The institution of education in American life is an indispensable instrument for building strong resistance against Communist and Socialist propaganda.

Every school child should be taught American history, the incomparable value of Constitutional government, the comparative advantages of the private ownership, free enterprise economic system. Children from the eighth grade up should be constantly reminded—yes, in school—that the American living standard is three times better than that achieved by any Socialist system in the world, and from five to ten times better than ever produced by Communism anywhere. This is a responsibility of the citizen-patron as well as the teacher, the administrator and the school board member. Are we fulfilling it? Not enough of us are.

In Our Churches

A third area for strengthening the church, Men with ability, faith in God and the character that grows from such conviction did not succumb to the Communist "brainwashing." They had basic values to cling to, principles to which they were dedicated. A church that is fulfilling its high commission equips young men and women with a set of inner disciplines and with challenging responsibilities. It inspires them toward Christian living, toward self-reliance, toward out-giving.

Along with the Christian home, the church constructs and constantly revitalizes the spiritual foundations upon which the school and the college can build. If the church fails in its mission the home and the school cannot survive. The church is eternal but its mission is the responsibility of each new generation of mankind. Are we as individuals adequately responding to this challenge? Each must answer for himself. The Communists believe that we are not. They expect to win the world for atheism. They already have taken nearly half of it.
