Plan Meeting To Discuss Game Hunt Regulations

The State Conservation Commission, scheduled to meet July 8-9 at Higgins Lake, will study recommendations from the Conservation Department on small game hunting regulations for the 1957 season. These regulations require Commission approval. Department game supervisors from all districts of the state met June 15-16 in Lansing to prepare recommendations on seasonal lengths, bag limits and other matters. These game biologists presented proposals adopted earlier this month at district and regional meetings with field representatives from several divisions of the Department. In Lansing, the proposals based on habitat conditions, game populations and related facts are discussed with other divisions and the Department director before recommendations are prepared for Commission approval.

A SMALL lake on the William Taylor property at 25280 Westmoreland is shared with five other neighbors positioned westward. Interesting to persons taking the garden tour last week. Enjoyed by many was a walk across the rustic bridge shown above connecting the Taylor yard with a landscaped island.

THE VAST area of the Hugh Dean estate at 17800 Twelve Mile left several tours in need of a rest after covering the grounds. Planned with over 1,000 evergreens, there is also a wide expanse of lawn and formal garden. Feed crops for horses and poultry are also planted at the estate.

Ice Cream Stains Require Special Care

Ice cream stains are like others in that they come out most easily if treated while fresh and moist. First aid for a stain on washable fabric is sponging in lukewarm water which helps to remove sugar, egg, milk and some colors. To remove greasy stains a cleaning fluid that dissolves grease may be helpful but usually unnecessary on washable fabrics.

After sponging with clear water, vanilla or chocolate ice cream stains usually can be washed out with lukewarm suds.

Fruit ice cream stains may need the same treatment as fruit stains. Some fruit stains come out when boiling water is poured on them. Others like peach or cherry stain may be set by heat. If that happens, try sponging with lukewarm water first then rub in a few drops of glycerin or soapless shampoo. Let stand a few hours and rinse out.

If after these careful treatments there are still traces of the stain try a mild, safe bleach such as sodium proborate.
