

TALKING TO THE Ladies Mrs. Nell Staebler was informal, charming and well informed. She went quite thoroughly into her husband's background up to his most recent activity as Congressman-at-large in Washington. She stated she thought the Governor, the position her husband seeks, received much more praise or criticism than he deserved.

The YWCA's Camp Cavell on Lake Huron went into its fourth and final two-week camping season for the summer last Saturday (August 9) with five girls from this area attending. The girls are: Sally and Sue Hahn, 13854 Croswell, Redford Township and Deborah Parlin, 12770 Sloux Ave., Redford Township.

To Women It May Concern

By MYRA COX

Let's all take a second or two to pay our respects and reflect on the lot of wives of men in the front line. There are Army wives, of course, and Navy and U.S. Air Force—and those brave astronaut wives—terrible. Then there are the policemen's wives and firemen's wives—every time they hear a siren, think what they must feel... and a least or two should be shed for the most overworked, underpaid, and oft abused of the lot—the postman's wife. BUT, m'lord, you're not really suffered—in my opinion—until you have been the wife of a candidate for public office. You know—a politician's wife.

A veteran candidate's wife laid down some rules the other day for this group of ladies. She must not lose her dignity or show anger in public or make an enemy for her husband for "a political friend is hard to find, but a foe you see everywhere."

This year more than any other there are so many new candidates on the ballot who have never run for public office—and thus a whole fresh crop of lovely women who have never faced the possibility of her husband's father, her rock, her lover and provider, being called in print, on the air, on the podium—a liar, a cheat, a weak man. Unload the muskets, men, for there is no wrath like a mad politician's wife... that is until she gets adjusted to the fact that today's enemy is tomorrow's ally... in politics as in war.

Having heard of a particularly dirty campaign trick in Redford Township against John Bennett, running for State Representative, one I am sure his particular opponents on the ballot could not be accused of, I thought about his wife, Edith, and decided to call on a politico's wife I've always thought of as ideal. Sweet without being false, dignified without being aloof, concerned without being hypocritical, and with a definite sense of humor, her name is Mary Ellen Canham, wife of Judge James Canham.

At a time when Jim was running for J.P. in Redford Township, the election became personal and completely nasty and Jim was a little shook at just how dirty the campaign was becoming.

Mary Ellen said she was seething inside herself but realized (and she was plenty young and inexperienced at the time) the best way to assist Jim was to remain outwardly as calm as possible, be ready to do in the campaign what he asked of her—but keep a pleasant, calm home—seal it against panic from the outside as a place where Jim could come to get away from the battle.

She says this same philosophy has worked successfully so far—and although Jim prefers her not to get too involved, she believes a wife should stand ready to do what her husband asks at campaign time—and be particularly understanding of the long hours away from the home—make it something the children can understand so they are not "bugging" their Dad, making him feel guilty about being absent.

Maybe let the fire go out in the hearth but keep the sense of humor blazing at all times and be ready with a clean face and curled hair when he says "let's go"—and a clean house in case it's reverse action and he says "you all come to my house."

Her best advice was be a lady, mind the children well, and put your own feelings in the cedar chest and be prepared for whatever task you are assigned.

Many of today's successful and unsuccessful politicians of the big picture reveal their basic training in Redford Township. Byron Walter did, and is now running for J.P. in Farmington. Marion, his wife, never failed to be on hand to address the envelopes, pour the coffee, mind the headquarters when asked. Part of Byron's success, I am sure, is due to Marion's quick sense of humor and warm smile.

John Swanson started in Redford Township—and I still feel today his greatest asset is Alice.

After two rough and tumble campaigns in Livonia I shall never forget the scene of seeing the Mayor of Livonia, Harvey Moeke's wife Betty, going out of her way to speak to the wife of one of her husband's most severe critics at a reception, where the critic had left her (to fill his punch cup again) and she was surrounded by strangers. It was a warm and generous gesture—natural with the person—and incidentally, one of Mayor Moeke's greatest assets, too.

50 YEARS of "togetherness" was celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Daniels of Melvin Avenue in Livonia last Sunday. The couple were married in Indiana and have lived in Livonia since 1941.

50th Anniversary For The Daniels

Ninety friends and relatives gathered in Livonia Sunday at the Clarenceville Methodist Church to honor a young-in-spirit and active couple, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Daniels, on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Nieces and nephews came from Cincinnati, Youngstown, Ohio, from Boston, Mass. and from Munich, Fort Wayne and Anderson, Indiana.

The ladies of the Clarenceville Methodist Church served refreshments and also honored the couple that have been active in the church since they moved into the community in 1941. Mr. Daniels is presently a Sunday school teacher of the adult Bible class.

Since he retired two years ago he has devoted a great deal of time to his acre of land with his flower and vegetable garden. His specialty is dahlias and glads.

During the reception honoring the couple their good friend Mrs. William Jehle sang a few solos accompanied by her daughter at the piano, Mrs. Cathy Kendall.

Assisting in the receiving and greeting of guests was the Daniels' only son and his wife, C. Waldo and Irene Daniels and their daughter Shirley.

A.A.U.W. Asks For Your Used Books to Sell

The new chairman for the annual spring book sale conducted by the Plymouth branch of the American Association of University Women have been selected. They are Mrs. Howard Bloom and Mrs. Richard Larson. The new chairmen have already begun planning for the 1965 book sale.

"An early awareness of our book sale may bring us donations from people who will be moving before school reopens. Also, there may be high school students who will wish to donate school text books they will no longer be using. This is a fine opportunity to clean out that attic or bookcase of books too good to throw away," the chairmen stated.

History books, pocketbooks, reference books, children's books, novels, poetry books and other types are needed.

Profits from the book sale are given to the AAUW Fellowship Fund which helps deserving women to further their education.

For personal pickup of books call Mrs. Larson at GA 2-7765, Mrs. Bloom at TL 3-8257 or Mrs. Robert Gilmore, at GL 3-6402.

If you want to hear a really pure Irish tenor voice you have another chance before he goes to Ireland in three weeks. Freddy Martin, (you name an Irish song and he'll sing it for you) will be at the Livonia Knight Inn, across from the new Sears this week-end. Stop in and say hello—if you're a "Pizen" he can also warble in Italian or for that matter in German.
