Farnum Challenges Kuhn to a 'Milking Contest'

Michigan Auditor-General Billie S. Farnum today challenged a lawyer to a milking contest on a put-up or shut-up basis.

Both are candidates for Congress in the new 19th district.

"The young man poses as a farm expert," said Farnum, a Democrat who earned good money and kept while going to high school by milking 54 cows daily. "I'd like to let him prove how expert he is from a milking stool — or else start talking about major issues in the 19th Congressional district."

In the new Congressional district—comprising Pontiac, western Oakland County, Livonia and Redford Township—Auditor-General Farnum is pitted against Richard D. Kuhn, Republican lawyer.

Farnum says he will make concessions in order to get the matter settled. "I'm almost ready to let the young man use a milking machine while I work by hand," he said. "I am certainly ready to let him concentrate in silence while I handicap myself by talking while I milk. I want to talk. I want to ask him some questions."

"First, I'll ask him to get on the record on Barry Goldwater," Farnum continued. "If he all-out for Goldwater — will he, for example, go along with Barry in bluffing about the Vietnam war? I am not ashamed of my leader, President Johnson, or of his plan to treat the bomb the way it was treated by Kennedy and Eisenhower—with respect and firmness. Why should he be ashamed of Goldwater?"

"My other questions will be along the same line. It is time he's told what he is for, not just what he's against—which means I want to progress in any form."

"Just let me at him in a milking parlor... or anywhere else on the farm, and he'll change the subject pretty fast."

Farnum, member of a Watrousville (Mich.) farm family, became State Fair Commissioner and helped reform and invigorate that Michigan institution. He was selected by the late Senator Blair Brady for his executive staff. As Auditor-General, he is "Michigan's watchdog of the tax dollars" and has tightened up government accounting practices on all levels of government throughout Michigan.

Area Kiwanians Plan Horse Show

Possibly it is their simple and uncomplicated nature which has brought the common horse a universal admiration from old and young alike.

Or possibly the association between man and horses throughout history has bestowed this animal with such high esteem.

Whatever the reason for their appeal, it is obvious that there has existed a close relationship between man and the horse, and one which at the various classes and breeds of horses indicates that they are indeed a complicated animal.

Residents of Detroit and the surrounding area will be presented with some of the finest representatives of various breeds of horses on October 8, 9, 10 and 11 when the Michigan International Horse Show is held at the Michigan State Fair Coliseum.

The Horse Show, one of the finest of its kind in the country, is sponsored by the Clubs of Metropolitan Detroit and all profits will go to the benefit of underprivileged children.

Visitors to the show will learn the difference between the three and five-gaited saddle horses, as well as being shown what has made the Tennessee Walking Horse a breed unto itself.

They will be invited to join the judges in their evaluation of numerous breeds of horses, whose origins date back thousands of years, and come from nearly all countries of the world.

Morgan, Arabian and Palomino are only a few breeds of horses which will parade around the Coliseum's main ring for the enjoyment of the spectators and the scrutiny of the judges.

Also on display will be an array of jumping horses, which will display their agility in surmounting a high fence. The skill of the rider will also be displayed in the equitation competition, which will judge the horsemanship of the man astride the horse.

A truly outstanding horse show, with all profits going to benefit underprivileged children, combine to make an enjoyable day for you and your family.

Ticket offices are located at: 15324 W. McNichols Road, Suite 106, the Hotel Statler Lobby. You may also obtain tickets or information from the office at 15324 W. McNichols Road, BR 5-1915. Why not treat your family to a fine horse show and earn a warm thank you from the Kiwanis and the underprivileged children of Michigan.

Paint SC Home

Livonia's Senior Citizens' home has a new coat of paint today.

The two-story frame house on Plymouth Rd. — used for group social events and for office space — was painted as a community project of the Livonia Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The run-down condition of the building indicated a lack of concern on the part of the community," Jack Reault, chairman of the project, said, "describing the reason for the Jaycee project. "This, however, is not true. In our rapidly expanding city, the need for new facilities sometimes causes a disregard of maintenance for their present facilities."
