To Women It May Concern

By MYRA COX

If you are the type like me that "shy-up" when you have an opportunity to exchange words with a celebrity, then you can imagine my excitement at the opportunity of interviewing Joe Clark and his family. Joe Clark, H.B.S.S. picture has appeared in Life Magazine over the past years, front page, inside and back story-page, as well as in other magazines and newspapers across the country.

His wife Bernice has had her pictures in many trade magazines and recently won the Eastman Kodak World's Fair award for color photography. Even their 15-year-old son Junebug has been a professional photographer from the age of six. Why, he looked on a camera, and at three a magazine bought his pictures as the "bug's eye view."

The Joe Clark "touch" has always appealed to me, with his uncanny eye for photojournalism—in fact, when they said one picture is worth a thousand words—it was Joe Clark's picture the author of the epigram must have been thinking about.

It was amazing to me to discover this fabulous family lived in Farmington—and further amazing they would be happy to come in on Saturday and visit.

Well, they are the most charming, delightful people I have ever met and most disarming—as easy to talk to as your Uncle Willie, your Aunt Sue and your cousin Jimmy. They are simply good folks.

To begin with, the H.B.S.S. impressive though it may sound, following Joe's name, stands for "hill billy snap shooter."

And this sets the key-note. Joe has rubbed elbows with presidents of countries and companies but he is pure homespun. Perhaps the twinkle in his eye is what keeps him from acting V.I.P.

The family moved to Farmington four years ago, bought their home without even seeing it because a friend thought it would be just right for them. They love Farmington and all of the three acres belonging to them. Much of the land is planted with fruit trees and garden.

They have a studio in Detroit, where most of their business is centered. However, all three always carry their cameras.

Both Bernice and Joe are proud of the natural aptitude of Junebug—he has been professional since he was six and has been a guest speaker talking photography for many large groups on campuses and elsewhere. He recently set up the dark room facilities for North Farmington High School. He is as relaxed and approachable as his parents. The only thing Junebug really is boastful about is his wonderful tree house.

He started with two friends, Jim and Ray Rowe, to "throw" one up—but, Pa came out and observed the project and guided the boys into doing the job right. Now, all built, it is snug and comfortable and probably the only tree house in five counties that has all the luxuries of home, including a TV set.

Perhaps Joe's humble beginning is what makes him such a regular guy. During the depression years he was working as a night watchman for J. L. Hudson Company.

A friend, knowing he was going on a vacation, gave him an inexpensive camera. He took a series of shots of J. L. Hudson, which were spotted by an executive. The top man was so impressed he bought the lot—and Joe was on his way.

Today he keeps a bag packed in his car because he never knows when Life Magazine or one of his other accounts may call him to hop a plane—meet a ship—or follow a train. He may be relaxed but he likes to be prepared.

Taking pictures is not always a snap—in fact sometimes it takes hours or days for the right shot—and plenty of patience. Joe favors color and is a "reporter in pictures"—and is often involved in taking tragedy pictures such as a recent plane tragedy with most on board killed. These are the most difficult. Other pictures that tell stories are a real pleasure and challenge to Joe.

He has published two books: "Detroit, God's Greatest City," and another called "Photojournalism."

His "Come in and Set a Spell," a book of "about 100 hillbilly poems," probably gives you the most insight to Joe Clark, H.B.S.S. one of my favorites was simply titled

"MY PAPPY"

My Pappy says life wasn't meant
To rush and hurry through.
But to love and laugh and be content
And think of folks like you.

Newburg Women Remember 75 Years

Fifty members and friends of the Newburg Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service attended the birthday luncheon on Thursday noon, Sept. 10, in the church social hall. This was in celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Ladies Aid Society and the 25th anniversary of the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Twelve tables were beautifully decorated to depict the 12 months of the year. Decorations were furnished by Eloise MacKinder, Gladys Arnold, Edna Smith, Doris Burr, Jean Rinsdell, Dorothy Wack, Joan Mernoy, Rose Reid, Marjorie Storer, Gladys Rider, and Margaret Ayers.

A unique display of old records, pictures and other articles pertaining to the ladies Aid Society of the church was provided by Vera Guthrie, Faye Grimm, and Beulah Smith.

After the luncheon, a delightful program was planned by the Program Chairman, Pat Peale. Devotions were given by Laura Larrabee. The history of the Ladies Aid Society and the W.S.C.S. was given by Gladys Rider, Eloise MacKinder, Margaret Ayers, Pat Peale, Doris Burr, and Jean Rinsdell.

At the conclusion of the luncheon program, corsages were presented to many of the past presidents and friends, dating back to 1928-1929.

A short business meeting was conducted by president Fern Ura.

Bake Your Own
For genuinely just-baked breads, get the ready-to-bake yeast loaves. Equally delicious are frozen rolls of different shapes which you let rise at room temperature for in a special way in the oven before baking. These can be served hotter-than-hot and very fragrant from the oven.

The frozen quick breads which come unbaked as batters, by contrast, are well named—they are popped from freezer to oven with no standing to "rise" and no interval of defrosting. They, too, come to the table hotter-than-hot, if that is your desire.

Livonia VFW Group Plans To Present Flags on Nov. 11

The Auxiliary of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3941, of Livonia, will make a presentation of flags to interested groups on Nov. 11 as part of the Veterans Day celebration. The presentations will be made at 7 p.m. in the Post home, 27553 Grantland.

Any group desiring a flag is requested to get in touch with Edna Blerkamp at KE 2-5285 before Oct. 25.

HADASSAH STUDY GROUP MEETING

APPROVING the dress as well as the model are members of St. Genevieve Rosary Altar Society planning a Fall Fashion Show and card party at Roma Hall Thursday, Oct. 1 at 8 p.m. Fashion models by Mary's Suburban Casuals—Farmington; hair styles by Hana Style Shop of Livonia and models by St. Genevieve

Rosary Altar Society. (Seated, l-r): Penny Duprey, publicity chairman; Roni Kahoun, fashion chairman; Kate O'Day, ticket chairman, GA 7-2568; Kay Mulqueen, president. Model (standing), Gert Deslippe. Tickets may also be purchased from Mary O'Donnell, 421-5977.

Fry'em

Ever tried any frozen baked breads? The frozen already-baked pancakes and waffles are taken from the freezer and popped into the automatic toaster. They are ready as quickly as a slice of toast.

Already-dried fritters of different flavors are ready to heat in the oven, as are a variety of doughnuts. . . . Frozen French toast comes fried to heat quickly in the toaster or to use as the basis for a hot grilled sandwich.

AAUW Book Sale In Farmington Aided Gifted Women

The American Association of University Women of Farmington has completed plans for the used book sale to be held Sept. 24, 25, 26 to raise money for its fellowship fund.

Each year the Farmington branch of A.A.U.W. has a book sale to raise money to contribute to the A.A.U.W. fellowship fund. For each of the past four years over $500 has been contributed. It is hoped that this year's sale will raise an even greater amount.

The sale is being held in the National Bank of Detroit building at Grand River and Farmington Rd. On Sept. 24 and 25 the hours are from 9 to 9, and on Sept. 26 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The A.A.U.W. sponsors a fellowship program that is like a many faceted gem. The program which is designed to enable gifted women to use their intellectual powers for the good of humanity" was begun over 75 years ago. The first fellowship, an award of $350, was granted in 1888. Since then over 1,700 women have received A.A.U.W. Fellowship Awards.

Among the women who have benefited from the opportunities offered through A.A.U.W. fellowships are a physician who organized the first mental health clinic in Thailand, an internationally known astrophysicist, and a Danish lawyer who became a Minister of Justice in the Danish cabinet.

American women who are promising scholars are given the awards to help them develop their abilities and not be deflected from their course of study because of lack of funds.

Through fellowship awards to women of many other countries, A.A.U.W. helps foster worldwide understanding. Last year A.A.U.W. gave 115 fellowships at a total of $292,950. About half of these were given to American women. The rest enabled women of many other countries to study in the United States or to continue their education elsewhere.

CAROL NELSON

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nelson of Floral Avenue in Livonia announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Ann, to Walter Bogoyevac, presently in the United States Navy, serving in Clarksville, Tenn., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bogoyevac of Arden Ave. The couple plans to marry after Walter receives his discharge from the service.
