

Livonia CC, Schools Join in Business-Education Day Program

The Livonia Chamber of Commerce will join with the Livonia and Clarenceville school systems in a joint business-education day program on Nov. 10.

That was the announcement of Phil Tanguay, manager of the Livonia Chamber, who indicated plans were finalized in a meeting of a joint committee from the three groups.

The project is designed to familiarize Livonia business and professional men with the day-to-day activities of the two school systems and their administrations.

Approximately 250 business, professional and governmental representatives will be invited to participate.

A four-hour program will be provided the representatives by the host senior high schools. The activities will include a tour of facilities, luncheon, group discussions and visits to departments.

that have special interest of the guests.

Education-Business Day is part of the over-all Chamber project to develop greater understanding between the business and professional community and the two school systems and administrations.

"The business and industrial community pays a large percentage of the bill for the maintenance of the school systems," said Tanguay. "Their executives are interested in knowing how their tax money is spent. They Bentley, Franklin and Clarenceville High Schools visited 22 area firms.

The committee last week studied the evaluation questionnaires returned by 90 per cent of the firms and 80 per cent of the teachers. The reports indicated a desire to carry out the program again.

The joint committee has asked the two school systems to conduct B-E Day again on May 12, 1965.

In the Nov. 10 program, the educators will return the compliment and host the industry and business leaders in an informative program.
