School Name Honors Hoover While Flags Fly at Half-Staff

When the Livonia School Board granted the wish of the children, parents, and staff of the new elementary school on Ladywood and Levan Road to name the school after Herbert Hoover, the flags in Livonia and throughout the nation were still at half-staff in mourning for the 31st president of the United States.

According to Principal James Otto, the vote was 210 in favor of naming the school after the recently deceased president to 20 who wished to have the board consider other names.

The school, which serves an area nearly two square miles in size bounded by Eckles, Haggerty Road on the west, Six Mile on the north, Goldview on the east, and Five Mile on the south, was previously called "Section 17" school.

President Hoover, born at West Branch, Iowa, on August 10, 1874, was the son of a blacksmith who gained the highest office in the land after a distinguished career as an engineer and humanitarian.

He grew up in Indian Territory and after graduation from Stanford in 1891 served as a mining engineer in western Australia, Asia, Europe, Africa, and the two Americas.

His interest in helping people in need began in 1900 when he directed a food relief program in China for the victims of the Boxer Rebellion. At the time of World War I he headed the organization which distributed $5 billion in relief from 1914-1923.

Hoover served as Secretary of Commerce from 1921 through 1928 and was elected president in 1928 to serve from 1929-33, to be succeeded by Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"We are pleased that the Board acted with such dispatch on the name picked by our youngsters," Mr. Otto said. "I'm sure that this great humanitarian statesman will prove to be a source of inspiration to staff and students."

Officers Elected in Helman Park

Members of the Helman Park Civic Association held their initial meeting of the year at Marshall School to elect new officers for the coming year. Patricia J. Duggan will serve as president; Lee Taylor, first vice president; Bob Tressler, second vice president; Mildred Vanderploot, secretary; and Bob Tuttle, treasurer.

Reverend Gordon Larson, missionary from West Iran (Indonesia), and a new resident of Helman Park, presented a most interesting program for the members. The films shown portrayed vividly the living conditions of the people in that part of the world and the differences between their way of life and ours.

The new Board of Directors announced tentative plans for activities during the winter months. They include the annual Christmas Party for the children, erection of signs at the entrance of the subdivision, open house for the residents, and a new Christmas Tree. The possible construction of a skating rink.
