Girl Scouts Active

By AMY CHARRON
Remember, Dec. 18. That's the date for the trimming of the Christmas Tree in front of Farmington's new City Hall. All the Girl Scouts of the Farmington neighborhood will trim the tree and sing Christmas Carols. The time is 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Come on folks, only by your attendance can you show your interest in the Scouts and can the project be a success.

Attending the recent Regional Conference in Chicago were Mrs. Bridget Reagan, leader of Senior Troop #258, Mrs. Mary Anne Smith, leader of Cadette Troop #304, and our neighborhood chairman Mrs. Leona Sild-wick. The subject of the conference was "Scouting A Promise in Action."

On Sunday, Nov. 8, six girls and two leaders, Mrs. F. Reagan and Mrs. F. Papke, of Senior Troop #258, hiked 14 miles of the Wilderness Trail in the Holly Recreation Area. The girls who took with them small gifts. Following that they are invited to Barbara Lewis' home for a Christmas Party.

They also gave Mr. Willy Worn to the children at the Plymouth State Home. This will be all the Girl Scout News until after the Christmas Holiday so all of you have a Merry Merry Christmas and the Best New Year's Ever.

Area Teens Are Known Singers

Popular teens Sandy and Sherry Sancher, of Walled Lake, are adding another step in their careers. They are going to make a western tour during the Christmas vacation for a group of personal appearances. This includes a date on Sunday.

Daughters of June and Sandy Gardner, both girls attend Walled Lake High School, and are combining their regular classroom work with a bright musical career which began when Lee Allen, WXYZ disc jockey, first took an interest in them. Sherry, 15, studies modern dance, art and takes guitar lessons. Blonde 16-year-old Sandy plays guitar, piano and the drums. She also takes accordion lessons. They have recordings of "It's Only a Paper Moon" and "Gonna Get That Man." Easter Recording Company did their latest, "He Is the Boy" and "Johnny Be Good."

Teen Life Digest recently carried a story on Sandy and Sherry as did the Nov. 18 edition of Inter Lake News. Mrs. Gardner is justifiably proud of her daughters and says that despite their talent, they are hard workers and realize the road ahead is not an easy one. "Career singing especially in 'pop' is very competitive and requires unceasing practice. The two girls are striving for perfection in their coordination. Their routines are written and worked out by Sherry," Mrs. Gardner says. "The Singing Sancher Sisters" as they are known will appear next at the Olympia in Detroit, Dec. 18, along with Dave Clark from England.

Historical Museum Dons Holiday Garb

The Detroit Historical Museum donned her festive holiday dress this year on Dec. 13th, when Detroit Historical Society Guild members and their families gathered for the traditional Hanging of the Greens. Evergreen and cranberry of the museum had a sub-committee devoted to making their area a picture of Christmas wonder. With unlimited ingenuity and imagination, all of the colorful symbols from centuries and cultures were employed to create a memory stirring atmosphere for museum guests of all ages.

A towering 25-foot Christmas tree, of the Native-Born Detroiters, dominates the Round Hall. Antique bulbs and ornaments are hung among all of the branches of this great tree.

Each year new garlands of popcorn, cranberries and paper chains, in the tradition of Christmas past, are made by Mrs. John M. Murray, 32209 Bonnet Hill, Farmington, and a select committee of the wee Santa helpers in the "Children's Corner."

Cookie cut-outs of all shapes, sizes and ornamentation are contributed from the kitchens of Guild members to assure visitors to the museum of a truly old-fashioned Christmas tree. Beneath the tree tightly wrapped packages and toys that thrilled yesterday's child will interest and charm today's small guests.

Seton Guild Tea Success

The Seton Guild Annual Christmas Tea for adults and the Christmas Party for the children of the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Home for Children was held Sunday, Dec. 13.

The adults enjoyed Tea in Labour Lounge, after an Open House and tour of the home, while the youngsters attended the party in the downstairs playroom of the home. This included the children of guests and the home. Santa Claus spoke personally to each child from his home and took their orders so that their desired gift will be delivered in time for Christmas morning. There were refreshments and small toys to delight the children and lots of laughter and joy thanks to the planning of Mrs. J. Bonmarito and Mrs. J. Malpeli, chairmen of the children's party.

The proceeds from the donation Tea will help provide the big presents which each child receives on Christmas morning, and of course it takes a lot of toys for 150 or more children. Assisting Mrs. Peter Rizzo, Guild President, and the Sisters of the home were Mesdames: R. Mrowczynski, Jerry Flanagan, Leo Weber, Burnett Benner, Faye Baldwin, Joseph Wolcik, Wm. Dooley, Paul Bowman, M. Swift, Harold Taylor, J. Battle, L. Timma, and L. Rossi.

Bridge Play Results
Winners in four table Howell duplicate game, played Dec. 10, at the Early Bird game, held weekly at the Farmington YMCA are: First place, C. Janke and J. Bone. Second place, J. Kohn and M. Lipson. Winners placed down 4 position.

There will not be a game played Dec. 24.

Gay garishes for Christmas cakes and cookies are red and green marshmallow cherries. If you plan to use the cherries in the batter, home economists suggest using already sliced cherries to eliminate the cutting and chopping chore.
