Timely Tips on

GARDENING

By Betty Frankel

FALL COLOR

October brings burnished fields and flaming foliage. The conflagration blazes brightly, only to consume itself by the end of the month, leaving ash-gray branches silhouetted against a leaden sky. Now, while foliage is bright and skies are blue, is the time to ramble across fields and down country roads. Savor the pungent odor of ripe apples, the sweet scent of autumn grasses, and the tang of a wisp of wood smoke hanging in the air.

We in Farmington are fortunate to still have open country in which nature can exhibit the glories of the October scene. Although the area population has increased tremendously in the past ten years and there are now about four times as many people living in the township as in the city, there are still back roads bordered by rolling meadows, small cat-tail marshes, and wild tangled woodlands.

DAHLIAS AND GLADS
Dahlias are extremely sensitive to cold and the first heavy frost will blacken the leaves of the plants. After this happens, cut the stalks off to within six inches of the ground and leave the tubers in the ground for a week or two to ripen. Then dig them carefully and turn the clump upside down for several hours so moisture may drain from the stalks. It is good to expose them to sunshine for a few hours. Then store the clumps in a cool, dry place. They may be stored in boxes of peat moss or sand, or in plastic bags. Plan to divide the clumps in the Spring before planting them.

Gladioli, too, need to be dug up for the winter. If the foliage is ripe and yellow, cut off the stalk two inches above the ground; then lift the corns carefully. If the foliage is not ripe, as on bulbs planted late in the season, dig the corns with the entire foliage attached and remove it after it has turned yellow. Prepare the corns for storage by removing the old corn and roots and separating the little cornets that have formed. Store in mesh bags or shallow trays in a cool dry, well-ventilated place.

Other summer-flowering bulbs, such as tuberoses, begonias, cannas, trilliums, and lilies also must be dug up in fall and stored until Spring in cool, dry, frost-free place. REMEMBERS: Water all evergreens thoroughly before the ground freezes. Do not feed them at this time. . . . Hose the foliage of evergreens thoroughly. . . . Set out bird feeders. . . . When vegetable garden is no longer producing, spade and leave soil in rough lumps. . . . Turn compost pile.

Completes NRA Pistol Course

James Daly of 28297 Farmington Road, Farmington; has been appointed a certified pistol instructor by the National Rifle Association of America.

The new instructor passed a series of tests and served a prescribed period of time in training activities before receiving certification. He is now qualified to conduct local classes in firearms operation, safe gun handling, and the techniques of shooting on the target range and in the field.

MR. DALY joins the ranks of selected personnel maintained by the NRA throughout the country in its small arms education program.

The program has been in operation since 1876; since that time many millions of people have been taught to handle and enjoy firearms safely.

During rainstorms, says the Automobile Club of Michigan, traffic often splatters mud on your windshield and headlights. Remember to keep your windshield wipers in good operating condition and to wipe off your headlights at frequent intervals.

Pedestrians can do much to protect themselves in traffic, says the Automobile Club of Michigan. Some safe walking tips for pedestrians are: Always cross at corners, not in the middle of the block; cross with the light at all times; and look in all directions before starting across a street. Pedestrians who observe these precautions will have a better chance of avoiding perilous situations.
