Village Women's Club Building Well Decorated In The True Christmas Holiday Spirit

The Old English country club members' gifts for patients in the Oakland Medical Care Facility and the Geriatrics Divisions of Pontiac State Hospital.

Next, the blue-green ornamented tree in the living room catches the eye. The lights from this tree will shine on Santa as he talks to members' children and grandchildren on Sunday, December 20. Mrs. Edward Nicholas has arranged for Santa's presence along with a huge supply of candy canes. Santa's elves, dressed appropriately for the occasion, will be Mrs. Paul Carriek, Mrs. Roger Craton, Mrs. Wendell Smith and Mrs. Brian Van Nola.

Highlighting the wall on the way down the stairs to the dining room is a display of paintings by mother and daughter, Grace T. Fox and Kathryn G. Fox of Birmingham. This display is one in a series of Village Women's Club revolving art exhibits, featuring art work from outstanding local artists. Mrs. Stratton Brown and Mrs. Donald Parsons, both artists in their own right, are in charge of the exhibits.

Tables topped with holly, red velvet bows and doves will be filled to capacity Thursday evening, December 17. Mrs. Ralph Fox has arranged an evening of Christmas caroling, both unusual and the old favorites. The "Jills," a group of nine girls from Bloomfield Hills High School, will sing some unique holiday music and will join members and their guests in singing the familiar tunes.

Series of Christmas Events Set at Southfield Church

Christmas will be celebrated with a series of events at the Southfield Community Church, 11122 Indian Beach and Inlander north of 8 Mile, according to Pastor Raymond Bayne.

Under the direction of Larry Elber the Youth Choirs of the church presented their annual Christmas Concert on Sunday evening, December 13. Nearly 150 young people were included in the concert singing traditional Christmas Anthems interspersed with readings of the Christmas Scriptures and accompanied by small orchestra. Mrs. Eric Buchanan is the organist.

On Sunday evening, December 20, at 7 o'clock the Bible School will hold its annual family Christmas Program under the direction of Mrs. Jean Pike. A huge Bible will be erected on the platform and in it will be portrayed various Christmas characters by children of the Sunday School. There will be a story will be presented in Scripture Picture and Song. The various choir clubs of the church will go caroling during the week preceding Christmas.

Christmas worship will be held on Christmas Eve from 11 p.m. till midnight with the traditional candle-light carol service. Featured will be new hymns to be installed in the church by then. The Christmas season for the Christmas season.

Local Handicap Assoc. Meets

The Executive Board of the Farmington Association for Handicapped Children held its monthly meeting Wednesday, December 10, at Noble School. Plans for the upcoming Christmas party for Secondary students of Special Education classes to be held December 18 at East Junior High were made. The time is 7:30 to 10 p.m.

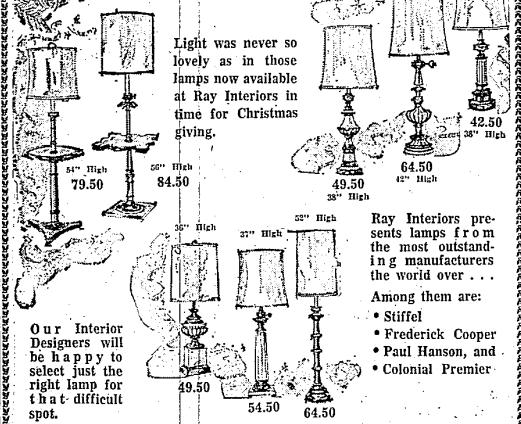

Ticket sales for the event are very brisk and a good time is in store for those attending. Other things discussed in their "Look Ahead" planning was the annual picnic for next summer. The time and the place have already been considered. Committees were appointed to work on the details at once.

A Pancake supper is also being considered as a fund raising project for this association. More activities are planned by the association.

January 28 was set as the next meeting date.

The Eiffel Tower gets a coat of brown paint every seven years.
