Around The Circle In Staman Acres

Mrs. Alexander Chadwick GR: 4-6865

Wednesday, November 13, the Staman Acres will hold their meeting at "On-Craft" on 22934 Woodward in Ferndale.

Sewing of cancer pads will be done in private homes this month to provide more time to work on the Christmas decorations. There will be a 10 to 15 minute talk before commencing with work. Any ladies who wish to start early, call Mrs. Chadwick at 4-6865. They may do so at 7:00 p.m.

Just a note to remind the pinners that the pinning meeting is at my home on Thursday, November 7.

Sunday, October 20, couldn't have been a more perfect day for the Staman Acres community hallo-wen party.

Chairman for this gigantic affair was Hazel McKee and her co-chairmen were Joyce Thompson and Marian Reynolds.

Charlotte Waskowski was food chairman and her crew was: Helen Schuppli, Margaret Wheeler, Margaret Sivy, Kay Wilkins, Catherine Poyma, Maddy Hajduk, and Millie Unks.

Serving on the reception committee were Jack and Zora Cross, Ralph and Winnie Jenkins, Maurice and Mazy Caillette and Palmer and Mar Essex. Jim and Jean Haines had charge of the prizes for the children. Joanne Smith had charge of the games. Under her direction in the 1 to 3 group were Allen Turner and Colleen Chadwick. In the 4 to 5 age group, the group from 6 to 8 was handled by teenagers Susan Sivy and Dave Paterson with assistance from Wendy, Nancy Sisty, Bob Waskowski, and Bob Unks. Russ and Judy Cleveland had the 9 to 10 group and Ray and Dee Wade had the 11 to 12 group.

Millie and Ray Unks and Gladys and Bill Hogan had charge of the decorations and the colorful table decorations gave proof of their artistic talents. Gertrude and Jerry Bursick had charge of the teen-agers with the help of Dave Paterson. The teens had a party later at night at the home of Bob and Judy Hanby. The electrical wiring and P.A. system, contributed by Dick Brown and Campbell Paterson with the able help of Dave Paterson. The help for the properties were handled by Bob and Judy Hanby.

The Ed Bylski family has a busy month in October. October 10, Ed celebrated his birthday, and on October 13 Ed and Lillian celebrated their wedding anniversary and if that weren't enough for one month baby Allen celebrated his first birthday on October 15. Relatives of the family were invited to dinner for a combined celebration.

Last Monday after bowling, a group gathered at the home of Joanne and Bill Smith for refreshments. Vic Waskowski gave a talk entitled, "Business Competition Today" and Millie Unks acted as moderator for the lively discussion that followed. At the next meeting of the group, the talk "Raise Your Average by Ten Pins" will be given by Beverly Ellis. Pat Burke will explain the snafus and deviations from form the bowler will want to avoid in order to keep his average on the up-grade.

Hunting season is here again. Marvin Kemp and his boys Terry and Bob brought back 7 birds. Another family who will be enjoying pheasant dinner will be the

Use TV to Teach Advertising Class

Closed-circuit television is being used to teach advertising at Michigan State University this fall. In what is probably the first attempt to handle advertising instructional materials through the electron tube, the M.S.U. course is being conducted to test the feasibility of using visual aid materials in this field and the effectiveness of television study.

The project is a continuation of M.S.U.'s research into closed-circuit TV instruction, a program begun several years ago in veterinary medicine and expanded into other subject fields.

Primary advantages of video instruction are the large number of students who can be taught by instructor, and the nearest of demonstration materials to the student. It has, for example, proven of great value in demonstrating surgery and anatomy. The experimental class is divided into two sections, one taught by the usual lecture method, the other by use of television. TV viewing is further split into two groups, one in the studio with the instructor and the other in a separate room with monitor TV sets, to measure the influence of various outside factors.

John W. Crawford, who joined the M.S.U. staff this year, after more than 20 years in the advertising field, is teaching the televised course. Before joining the university staff he was associated with Leo Burnett Company, Inc. of Chicago and was vice-president of Kenyon and Eckhardt, Inc., of New York.

tain's Welfare State. The pushing down has about smothered out of existence the upper income and the middle-income levels. Nevertheless, everybody now is at the bottom—87 per cent with incomes from $550 to $2,000 a year.

It may get better in the United Kingdom. The Conservative Party is trying to restore a larger degree of self-reliance and freedom among the wage earners and re-created the motive power of strong incentives among the creative entrepreneurs. But it is trying to do this while retaining much of the Welfare State philosophy.

Some Conservative leaders are making public compromises with the Socialist way of life out of a last-ditch desire to keep the Conservative Party in power—hoping to be able ultimately to educate the majority of Britons to the advantages of capitalism and economic self-reliance. Some, however, appear to have rationalized an acceptance of basic socialist philosophy, and this latter group seems to be in control. A strained acceptance of a substantial part of Socialism appears to have occurred also among some of the top private enterprise industrialists of the United Kingdom.

Meantime, millions of England's wage earners, expertly propagandized by shrewd, dedicated Socialists, continue to be grateful to the Socialist-Labor Party for the Welfare State handouts. And what are these? The Old Age Pensions are a good example of the poverty of a Welfare State. It was $3.64 a week when the Conservatives took over in 1952. They've boosted it twice, to $5.50. But because of inflation, the purchasing power increase has amounted to only about three shillings—less than 45 cents—in six years. And even at this low figure, the program seems headed for serious trouble. The National Insurance Fund is running a heavy, growing deficit.

Goodness and benevolence never tire. They maintain themselves and others and never stop from exhaustion. —Mary Baker Eddy
