Second Talk on Food Slated

The second of a series of discussion programs on food being sponsored jointly by the Edgewood School PTA and Mothers Club will be held this evening, March 27, at the Edgewood School starting at 8 p.m.

Tonight's topic will be "More Food for Less Dollars." Mrs. Josephine Lawyer of the Cooperative Extension Service will show how to stretch the food dollar to provide more food for the family. She will be assisted by Miss Rickard.

Two weeks ago, March 13, the first meeting in the series was held with the topic being "What Surplus Food Can Do for You." Pointed out at the time was that it is eligible to receive this surplus food and how to go about signing up to get it. Material regarding this will be available at the meeting tonight and also at the final meeting in the series on Friday evening, April 11.

The topic for the final meeting will be "Food Shopping Tips." Pointers on ways buying will again be given by Mrs. Lawyer.

Alta Loma Sub News
Mrs. Loren M. Jenks, Jr.

The Home Owners Association's latest meeting was held last week. For the benefit of those who were unable to attend and whose husbands are not very good reporters (I hope mine was), here are a few notes. The involved business of restrictions control for Alta Loma One and Two was settled (check with the Board of Directors). Mrs. Pell states that the annual statement is enroute and when they get the loot in hand there will be a new roster printed. We note the latter because so many have requested a new list for home use. The association needs to know who's who first.

Of a social nature, the Titchbeins are helping organize game bowling for the group. If you are interested, call them. In addition, tentative social plans were announced. We'll have an outing at Kensington and a repetition of the October dance, if that's possible.

Then there was a discussion, as usual, of dogs. The Association also distinguished itself by providing a guest speaker, Samuel Turner, who reportedly gave an interesting presentation about the history of the local school system.

Many thanks to Marlene Theobald for an able job in the absence of the vacationing Jenks. That missed column was my fault, no hers, incidentally. We're back though after a delightful and de-greish couple of weeks in wonderful Miami.

The Bradys also traveled Florida - way not long ago. Their luck was not quite as good weather-wise, however, as they visited Sebring and Tampa.

Spring brings us many new neighbors. The Carl Boehlker from Detroit moved in this week on Alta Loma. Neighbors should know both the Boenkes by now. Carl is a builder, and is the artist behind his own house. Laurel, half her landscaping done already by Sandy Bentzel, of Cass Court, celebrated a birthday last week. The Bentzels also entertained Sandy's grandmother, 70 in Rochester, New York.

The Earl Warners visited Lansing over the weekend.
