Speaker G. M. Van Purseon Reports

Friend of mine, whose interest in state government matters that of most citizens, told me the other day that he was going to quit reading newspaper stories about the state government. I was rather surprised, because almost everyone is interested in government spending. I said the state would be in a better position than it has been in for some time. Column Writer's Experiences In Europe Many and Varied

By Ann Phillips 'Amherst! Amherst!' rang out from a group of German friends on the observation balcony as we (the Phillips) boarded the plane at Munich for our return trip to Europe. We had just hours from the time of our arrival there.

Nancy drove us to the Detroit Municipal Airport to see us off on a North West economy class flight to leave at 6 p.m. Checking in to confirm our reservations, Paul was asked if we would be willing to take the first class dinner flight leaving five minutes later. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.

In London we changed to the Luftwaffe airline which landed us at Munich just 22 hours after we had left Detroit. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.

HOW A living is wrested from this country is far more interesting than the life of a Roman. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.

WE SAW the Hofbräuhaus where Hitler got his start, went by the monument erected to honor the German people. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.

WE EXPECTED to reach Rome that night - after all the map it doesn't show. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.

ABOUT NOON Christmas Day we reached Rome. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.

THE FOLLOWING day we reached there quite late and were foolish enough to climb the long, low, rocky hills. We were standing by for our flight. As it would get late, we had a quick dinner.
