Community House

Last week's meeting of the Farmington Community House Ass'n had been expected by some to plan a decent burial. Instead it turned out there is no corpse, but instead enough interest that the only purpose of the organization might yet be achieved.

We'll hope the two immediate objectives will become vital. Quarterly meetings undoubtedly will help maintain interest of people, even when they don't attend them. Purchase of a site could stimulate further activities a great deal.

What many apparently have forgotten, if they ever knew, is that the Community House is not intended solely for use by organizations. There will be a great deal of use by individuals and small groups, for social as well as civic activities.

The Enterprise definitely supports objectives of the Community House Ass'n, and hopes enough more individuals will realize need for help and enthusiasm that work will be expanded immediately.

State Control Soon

There is so much, much more to the state's financial battle than appears on the surface. There is so much, much more to the arguments involved that we should be somewhat suspicious of those now trying to force the legislature into one path or another, on the evasive argument the state's reputation is being damaged. The state's path and almost its very existence for future generations is being decided in Lansing now.

The plan being unfolded by the "Liberals" will unite the executive, judicial and legislative branches and create an interlocking government in which all power will emanate from the top. The Democrats control the state supreme court, and this turns out to be very important in the path being set out.

Actually, the Democrats and Republicans in Lansing may be having their last evenly-matched war for a long time. If the Democrats next year gain a majority in the Senate, they intend to amend the constitution to re-apportion the State Senate on a basis of population. We'd lay a bet you will be voting on this in 1960.

There is already written a proposed amendment re-aligning the Senatorial Districts to jerrymander the districts and assure Democrats a majority. They'd control the laws and the constitution.

There is an AFL-CIO booklet titled "State and Local Taxes," in which the union stresses the importance of constitutional revision. The tax goals include removal of the 15-mill amendment, removal of all restrictions on state borrowing, eliminations of segregated funds such as the School Aid Fund and the Highway Fund, and a graduated income tax exempting the average wage earner.

Now that the Democratic-UAW machine has demonstrated it has power to win elections, there is no reason to believe they will relax with only two major bulwarks left in their path—the State Senate and the State Constitution.

Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do when it has to be done, whether you like it or not. —Husley

What's New With OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTHFIELD—The conditions under which horses may be kept in Southfield City brought out a spirited discussion at the last meeting of the council. There were two large groups of interested citizens—horse lovers, and horse-killers with reservations.

The proposed ordinance, which was originally meant also to control animals and fowl, was finally tabled for further study. But it brought out a great variance in feelings. The proposed ordinance would require horses to be stabled at least 500 feet from any other building other than the owner's. Such a requirement would necessitate ownership of approximately 23 acres of land before horses could be kept. The arguments included odors and undue noise by horses, the advantages of horses for children, and a stock argument that "People are more important than horses."

DEARBORN — A Dearborn father of four boys became a priest of the Roman Catholic church last Sunday. His father, Father Moga, who has been an ordained cleric of the Rumanian Eastern Orthodox Church for 21 years. He lives with his wife and four sons, and for 10 years was pastor of a Rumanian Eastern Orthodox Church in south-east Dearborn.

In a ceremony the Most Rev. John A. Donovan, auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese of Detroit, welcomed the former Dearborn resident to the Roman Catholic priesthood. In the Catholic church, it is a general rule that priests may not marry, but that married men sometimes may become priests.

NOVI—Although the Novi village council voted 41 last month to rezone the 120 acre Heslip farm for industrial use, the Novi Civic Improvement Ass'n is now trying to force the referendum vote and court action to fight the move.

The councilmen reviewed the situation for the council, including two public hearings, numerous council and planning board meetings, and a final meeting for interested persons. Councilmen voting for rezoning said the opponents had failed to come up with a concrete plan which could be used.

PLYMOUTH—Rumors were prevalent in Plymouth last week that Daisy Manufacturing Co. was about to be sold to an outside company. City officials also learned their price on 12 acres of city-owned property on Plymouth Road had been accepted by Wheel Truing Co. of Detroit, and the firm planned to rush a building which would bring employment to about 200 persons.

LIVONIA—At the city council meeting last week the subject of a proposed commercial center at Farmington Road and Six Mile came up again, with the result that the council asked the department of law to prepare alternate resolutions for approval and disapproval of the petition by Slavic Builders. A representative of the Bell Creek Association told the council residents of the area didn't want "any shopping center there."

State Supreme Court Power Getting Heavier on Everyone

THE DEPTH of its influence over the states eight million citizens and their elected officials was again demonstrated by the Michigan Supreme Court. IN A PERIOD of just a few days early in June the high court settled legal problems stemming from family squabbles to such widely debated issues as taxes and labor disputes.

The court also adopted two rules of procedure that in effect remind the governor, the legislature, and other judges to "keep on their toes."

One rule paves the way for a quick decision on the legality of whatever tax program Gov. C. Mennen Williams and the GOP-controlled legislature are trying to push through.

Another new rule sets up a procedure for cracking down on any judge who brings "disreputable publicity" to the court. The rule allows Williams to bypass lower courts for decisions on matters "of such public moment as to require quick determination."

Democrats have questioned the constitutionality of the Republican plan for a penny boost in the use tax, just as Republicans questioned the constitutionality of the Democratic endorsed "piggy back" income tax that was defeated in the House.

The councilmen reviewed the situation for the council, including two public hearings, numerous council and planning board meetings, and a final meeting for interested persons. Councilmen voting for rezoning said the opponents had failed to come up with a concrete plan which could be used.

At Home in Old Homestead

Jacqueline Davis GR. 4-1230

A lovely welcome to Dennis and Audrey Brunt who have been living in their new home at 26355 Old Homestead Rd. for several weeks. The Brunts, like several of our other residents, have completely built their home themselves. They worked on the home over two years before moving in and, although the work is still in progress, finishing work is being done in the interior, the end is now in sight.

THURSDAY marked important events for two Old Homestead families. Brian Quaine, son of Tom and Betty Quaine, celebrated his tenth birthday and Shirley and Bill Simmons observed their tenth wedding anniversary.

Norman Bembas, son of John and Sylvia Bembas, is spending the summer as a student manager in one of the Food Fair Stores in Livonia.

Forty relatives and friends visited the Radtatz home on Sunday following baptismal services at Mt. Olive Lutheran Church in Detroit at 4 and 6 p.m. The bride and groom were William Ross, and his cousin Shawn Smith Toner of Detroit were baptized. The six week old infants were born within days of each other at Northwest Grace Hospital.

Last week three young men toured the subdivision collecting old newspapers and magazines. They plan to return each month hereafter. Save your old papers and magazines for them.
