Wandering Thru Woodbine

Ethel Begian GR. 4-4759

The chief activity of Woodbine in the past two weeks seems to be coming and going on vacations.

Louise and Owen Martin have just returned from a wonderful stay at Lake Placid, New York, in the heart of the Adirondacks. They went in connection with a five day convention of the American Society of Refrigeration Engineers. After the morning meetings they did quite a bit of sightseeing, and one of the highlights was going up Whiteface Mountain, which has an elevation of 14,800 ft. On top of the mountain they had a 75 mile view they called the St. Lawrence Seaway and Lake Champlain. They also did some boat riding on Lake Placid and saw the chasms and glaciers along the Au Sable River.

FRANK AND BOB Riddick and John are home now from their tour through Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Maryland to North Carolina where they spent at Cape Hatteras, swimming and relaxing by the ocean. On their tour they visited Washington, D. C., for several days, and tried to see everything. They went thru the pentagon, the F.B.I. buildings, and saw all the monuments. While they were in Virginia they saw the Chesterfield plant and saw cigarettes made. They also toured Williamsburg and saw all the historic retrations.

Several days after they got home their beloved Parakeet named Peety, got loose and flew away in the trees. Bird is quite upset about his loss and if anyone finds a green bird with a band on his leg numbered 32 please call John.

5 Farmington Teachers at NEA Confab

Five Farmington public school system teachers were among some 150 Michigan delegates in attendance at the 38th annual National Education Association convention at St. Louis, Mo. Local teachers present were: Mrs. Edith Powers, Cleveland school; Mrs. Florence Covron, William Groves; Mrs. Rose DeLong, Mrs. Hazel Brescher and Mrs. Mae Sitko, Ten Mile school; Harold DeLong, elementary principal in the Detroit school system; was also in attendance as a delegate of the Michigan State Teachers' Club.

One of the highlights of the convention for Michigan delegates was a Wolverine breakfast served Wednesday morning, July 1.

William Comar, NEA Director for Michigan and Dean of Women at Hillsdale College, presided at the breakfast. She was in charge of coordinating all Michigan Education Association-NEA activities during the weeklong convention.

Also present at the breakfast were John Stranberg, newly elected president of the M.E.A., and Dr. E. Dale Kennedy, M.E.A. executive secretary. Members of the M.E.A. executive staff served as hosts.

Elections and a policy-making business session wound up the convention on Friday, July 3.

Melodee and Richard Tolman, now of Florida but formerly from Farmington have returned home following a vacation here months.

NO MATTER how humble a home may be it should still be a dwelling which the people living in it can be proud of. Unfortunately, some people allow their places of residence and surrounding grounds to become run-down and cluttered. Such is the case with this home and property at the corner of Independence and Waldron Streets. A little repair work on the building itself, at very little expense,

Wade B. Brown, 29215 13 Mile Road, Farmington, attended the ninth course in Industry Defense and Mobilization held recently at the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization of the College in Battle Creek, Michigan.

He was among a group of 50 executives, civil defense coordinators, military officers, safety inspectors, directors of industrial relations, industrial specialists, planning officers, management intern trainees and plant engineers who met in Farmington. Brown is Senior Defense Engineer, Michigan Bell Telephone Farmington.

Emphasizing the great need for civil defense and the many advances made by industrial firms in the nation toward developing efficient civil defense programs.

Brown listed the 10 steps by which industry might adequately prepare for possible enemy attack as follows:

1. Establish a self-help organization in plants by enlarging such services as the plant fire brigade, medical and first aid facilities, rescue teams, and war den, welfare and police groups.
2. Set up security plans for protection against espionage and sabotage.
3. Provide shelters by designating safe areas in existing buildings or by including protective features in the design of new construction.
4. Plan for evacuation, including reception and care of employees in safe areas and their return to their home communities and jobs following attack.
5. Plan for continuity of management, including selection and retraining of alternate company headquarters, establishment of personnel succession lists and development of emergency financial arrangements.
6. Protect vital record and documents by duplication and storage in vaults or areas safe from attack.
7. Plan for emergency repair and restoration. Establish a system for quickly assessing damage and restoring production, including alternate arrangements for equipment, warehouse and supply.
8. Establish Industrial Mutual Aid Association by joining with neighboring industrial plants to provide assistance to each other in the form of equipment, materials or personnel when needed in time of disaster.
9. Deconcentrate production. Be sure that critical items are manufactured in more than one place.
10. Disperse industry—employ the simple military measure of using space or topography for defense of industrial plants against attack.

State's June Traffic Toll Stands at 101

The State Police report that, according to tentative figures, 101 fewer persons were killed in highway accidents in the state during June with the death toll standing at 101 compared to 111 in the same month last year.

But it was indicated that delayed deaths, which always increase the provisional figures, may result in June being the third consecutive month to show a gain over the corresponding month last year.

Michigan ran counter to the national five per cent increase in fatalities during the first quarter of the year. However, sharp reverses upward of 40 and 38 per cent in April and May, respectively, plus the tentative death toll for June have brought the accumulated total for the first six months to 589, or 18 more than the 571 who died last year in the same period.

Final figures for May showed 126 persons were killed and 1,176 injured in 14,200 accidents. In addition to the gain in deaths, the injuries and accidents were both up nine and eight per cent, respectively, compared with May last year. Injuries have now increased in seven of the last eight months and accidents have gained for seven consecutive months.
