

A man's life may stagnate as literally as water may stagnate, and just as motion and direction are the remedy for one, so purpose and activity are the remedy for the other.—John Burroughs.

Westbrooke Manor

MYRA SCOTT, GR. 4-6603 BARBARA LORENZ, GR. 4-1147

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward and their daughters, Pam and Christine, returned recently from a two week vacation in New Jersey and New York.

THIS HOUSE is located at the southeast corner of Astor and Tullane streets in the Nine Mile-Middlebelt area. Although by far not the worst looking home in the community, it is definitely in need of some improvements.

Timely Tips on GARDENING

By Betty Frankel

ROADSIDE WILD flowers—water roads are lined with ribbons of misty blue chicory, accented with nodding white Peat moss, buckwheat hulls, bright yellow pompons of wild lettuce or sow thistle. Here and there an entire field, taken over by Canada thistle, has been transformed into a sea of delicate lavender blooms.

The earliest of the more than eighty species of goldenrod that brighten our fields and roadsides are now in bloom. This much-maligned plant is mistakenly regarded by many people as the cause of hay fever.

REMEMBERS—Brown patches on lawns may be caused by chinch bugs or grubs. Chlordane will kill them. Use a separate sprayer so there is no chance of subsequently damaging garden plants.

ORIENTAL POPPIES ARE now entering a period of dormancy. Their blazing blossoms, which dominated the June garden, have been gone for over a month and gradually the mounds of hairy, soft green foliage turned yellow and are now brown and crisp.

Annual plants can be used to fill the void when the withered foliage is removed. Care must be taken not to injure the crown of the plant, and a small space should be left for the rosette of new leaves which will appear in a few weeks.

The older varieties were a vivid orange, but many new and more subtly colored varieties have been developed in recent years. Oriental poppies are now available in white, pale peach rose, salmon pink, watermelon pink, and lavender.

Even though the weather is warm, do not neglect to apply insecticides. In fact, insects and other garden pests thrive during summer's hottest days.

Single Address Will Do Job

"Few people would deliberately hamper the delivery of their mail."

"But there are many folks who accomplish this unfortunate result by trying too hard to be helpful," relates Farmington Postmaster Henry Trombley.

This is especially true with parcel post packages, claims Trombley. Specifically, it involves putting the mailing and return addresses on more than one side and sometimes on all sides of the package.

But there are better ways to insure safe delivery. "If the package is well-wrapped and well-labeled, and if the contents are properly packed, the chances of loss or damage are very small," says the postmaster.

"The public can avoid unnecessary work, and the post office can avoid unnecessary trouble," states Trombley. "If packages carry a single main and return address are properly wrapped, packaged and tied."

Love must be learned, and learned again and again; there is no end to it. Hate needs no instruction, but waits only to be provoked.—Katherine Anne Porter—Mary Baker Eddy.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

A week ago, Red Roberts' wife gave birth to a baby boy. Naturally, we went to the hospital to see the new arrival.

We found Red standing (and beaming) in front of the nursery window, saying things like "look—he's got my eyes," and "his chin is shaped exactly like the Missus," and "Yesir, that's my boy."

Just then a nurse whispered, "That Johnson baby is cute, isn't he Mr. Roberts? We'll bring yours out in a minute."
