Editorially Speaking Community Needs Planning, Controls

A master plat, good zoning and ordinances with teett in them are three important ingredients that are needed in the development of a wholesome community in which to live.

Without these communities will grow but the end result will wrow but the end result will work but a lack of community planning an result in. While there are several older areas in the community that are well developed, well kept and assets to the community, there are also many less desirable developments that tend to downgrade the community.

there are also many less desirable developments that tend to downgrade the community. A number of a sas in our community in years goje by developed with few restrictions. The result has been homes without idequate water for sower facilities and areas with homes in them that range in class all the way from sub-standard housing to fine residential living quarters. Odder commercial and industrial development was also allowed with little regard for planning or what the effect might be on the community in future years. As a result we have industrial plants and manufacturing companies immediately adjacent to good commercial establishments and in some cases far too close to residential developments.
