RECALLS DAYS OF CHIVALRY

Remarkable Duel Fought Between Champions One of the Happenings in the Balkan War.

A correspondent of the Paris Journal narrates a striking story of the fighting near Tarabos. In the hospital at Rieka, he says, he saw a young Turkish officer who had been terribly hacked with saber cuts.

This man, who had command of an outpost before Tarabos, had ridden forward on horseback in the face of the Montenegrin bullets, and in the manner of the knights of old had challenged the bravest among the enemy to meet him in single combat. This took place in the evening, in the light of the moon.

An old Montenegrin, a veteran of many fights, accepted the challenge, and the two battled together for a long while, scrupulously observing the laws of an honorable duel.

The Montenegrin was wounded in the shoulder only, but the Turk was shattered in a frightful manner, and though he resisted for a long time, half-blinded by his own blood, he eventually fell. Thereupon his enemy bent over him, stanching his wounds and called for assistance, after which the injured Turk was removed with all speed to a hospital.

KNOW WORKMAN BY THE HAIR

Blonds are Inventive, Brunettes Conservative, is Assertion of an Employment Chief.

Dr. Katherine M. H. Blackford, who has charge of the employment bureau in the M. Rumsey company's machine works at Laporte, Ind., gave an address before the Efficiency society and the "Scientific Selection and Assignment of Men in the Creation of an Organization." She said that one of the greatest causes of waste in business concerns was "ignorance of human aptitude and the requirements of different kinds of work."

"Blonds and brunettes do not work in the same manner," she said. "Generally speaking, blonds are speculative and optimistic; usually mild and good natured, often inventive; they like to make plans for some one else to work out. They incline to aggressive work, such as salesmanship, advertising and promotion."

"Brunettes incline to conservatism, rather than speculation; they are often serious minded; sometimes inclined to gloominess. They like to work out and perfect the plans which some other mind has made."

BOMBS FROM THE SKY.

Such marked improvement has been made recently in the effectiveness of bomb throwing from aeroplanes that it is but a short time before it will be possible for one of these sky soldiers to drop a deadly missile into the very vitals of a ship through the funnels. There is a demand for some sort of shield which will prevent this and at the same time interfere in no way with the passage of smoke and vapors from the funnels of the vessel. Several attaches of the army and navy are at work on the problem, which involves more difficulties than appear on the surface, and the attention of inventors outside of these organizations has been invited with the hope of finding some simple means of meeting the demands.

PRETTY GOOD OLD WORLD.

If you are deceitful, two-faced, faithless, proud, sensitive, fear-some, egotistic, you will see all people through colored spectacles.

If you are gentle, patient, fearless, honest, loving, candid, truly humble, and open-minded, you will see the world as it really is.

And it is a pretty good world, and men and women as a rule want to do the right thing. The thoroughly bad person is rare, an exception and an abnormality.

Furthermore, if you don't believe this, something is the matter with you.—Dr. Frank Crane, in Woman's World.
