A Fishing Trip in Florida

The following letter from M. H. Hunt of Redford, who is spending the winter at Crystal River, Fla., tells of one of his delightful fishing trips:

The fishing lately has not been as good as it usually is, so I accepted an invitation from a friend of mine from Michigan to make a trip to that famous Bass river. I will give you an outline of our very interesting trip.

"We left here at 12:15 p. m., going to the end of the railroad to a town called Homassassa on the river of the same name, which is the most beautiful stream I ever saw and is noted for its bass fishing. A two p. m. we boarded a fish tug, making run of eight miles down the river to Gulf of Mexico, then five miles out in a crooked channel to get deep enough water to make the balance of the way (six miles) to the mouth of the river, which we reached at dark. Then four miles up in a zigzag course to the head of navigation by power boats. Here we borrowed a row boat of an acquaintance from Bronson, Mich. The rest of the way was made against the tide. The moon lighted up the river. Not a sound could be heard except the splash of our oars and the cry of an occasional waterfowl alarmed at our approach. We reached our stopping place between seven and eight o'clock, some tired and a little hungry. The "nigger" cook soon had a hot supper ready. It consisted of broiled squirrel, sweet potatoes, pancakes with southern syrup, fried leg of plant and many other dainties. The parties we borrowed our boat of have an immense tent and live in it all winter, not a house within eleven miles of them, except the one we stopped at. Two brothers, their wives and families make up the party.

The next morning we up at daylight getting our tackle ready. After a far better breakfast than you would think possible in such an isolated place, we started out to cast our lures on what is said to be the best bass waters in the state. We landed three before leaving the little dock. At ten o'clock we had a four foot stringer full, at noon part of another one, and then, alas, a cloud appeared above the tree tops and sooner than you could think possible it rained and such a rain. My friend had on what he supposed was a waterproof fishing suit and looked unconcerned. This did not last long as the water was soon running down his back. My raincoat protected me. We rowed back to the house where a rowed fire was made in a big dry place and by night he was lost, but a half day's fishing was lost. The next day was an exact repetition, so we only got two half days, as we left for home next morning, driving eleven miles through the wilderness to the railway. Three hours in a vehicle without springs gave us some desire for food and night here we were exceedingly fortunate in meeting an acquaintance, who invited us to his home for dinner. And such a dinner—game, fish, various kinds of vegetables, finishing with strawberries and cream. Say, I am glad the Lord made Florida. It's great in the winter and some say the summers are just fine.

Some of my northern friends here for the winter are having fine bird shooting, getting the limit (20) in three or four hours. We had nine quail sent us on one time last week. It would add a lot to the pleasure of the fishing here if I could hand out the fish to my friends. Just think of the hundreds we put back in the river while on my trips to the Chassabowitzka.

A Message to Railroad Men. E. S. Bacon, of East St. Bath, Me., sends out this warning to railroaders everywhere: "My work as conductor caused a chronic inflammation of the kidneys and I was miserable and all played out. From the day I began taking Foley's Kidney Pills I began to regain my strength, and I am better now than I have been for twenty years. Try them. Sold by T. H. McGee.

Alvin Dudley has purchased lot 69 of the Willmarth subdivision of Perry-Morseman Co., and his brother-in-law, John Bell, secured the adjoining lot number 70. Wm. Dudley, Jr., purchased from the same parties lot number 46 on Hart Bros. subdivision. These men are all planning new homes.

It's worth one's while several times over to pay a visit to the new drug store, the Redford Pharmacy, in the new Hawthorn block. The store is just as good, if not so large, as they have in the cities and is a complete and modern place in every particular.

The finish is of oak and the shelving is of the latest wall case pattern with glass fronts. Display tables with plate glass tops will also be used for serving tables for ice cream and cold drinks.

The fountain is a beautiful piece of work, especially designed, as is all of the interior, for the place. Nothing left undone that would in any manner detract from it as an up-to-date pharmacy in every respect.

The manager, Mr. Myers, is a young man, but one who has had years of experience, as a registered pharmacist and a very capable and pleasant man to meet. He invites the public generally to call and inspect the new store and get acquainted.

The patronage that has already been bestowed on the new place proves its need and insures its future success.

A Gold, La Grippe, Then Pneumonia. Is too often the fatal sequence. La Grippe coughs hang on, weaken the system, and lower the vital resistance. R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Haverhill, N. H., says: "I was troubled with a severe La Grippe cough which completely exhausted me. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound soon stopped the coughing spells entirely. It can't be beat." Sold by T. H. McGee.

LONG KNOWN TO MEDICAL MEN

Abundant Proof That the Operation of Trepanning is a Very Ancient One.

While the medical profession is agreed that some rough form of surgery must have existed from very ancient times, it has always been a matter of wonder that so complex and delicate an operation as trepanning should be also one of the oldest.

There is authentic record of this operation dating back to the time of Hippocrates, who wrote treatises on fractures, dislocations and wounds of the head, wherein he described the method of procedure to be followed in the case of a fractured skull. His idea was to cut away a piece of bone so that the pressure on the brain might be relieved.

The annals of this era also show that a file was used for this purpose which, at a time when modern anaesthetics were unknown, must have been, to say the least, painful.

According to Holmes, the operation of removing pieces of bone was performed long before historic times. The effects on the skull are easily seen after death and are visible as long as the bones are preserved. From inspection of certain skulls of the later stone age in ancient Britain there has been derived the conclusion that some of these had undergone the operation, which must have been performed with a stone implement—Harper's Weekly.

HOT ONE

Miss Antique—I received an invitation to Mrs. De Swell's ball.

Miss Caustique—Indeed, who are you going to chaperone?

LET YESTERDAY ALONE.

Learn to let yesterday alone and you will have a happier life. There is nothing more miserable than to be perpetually having a parade of yesterday's misadings.

Counter-marching is never satisfactory. Even the things we felt were passable at first sight are disappointing when rehearsed.

If you have things to regret, do it once and for all.

You realize you could be sorry forever after for some of the acts of your life—but what's the use?

What an awful price people pay for the determination to "get square" with those they fancy have injured them! No matter what others do to us, every bit of retaliation, every bit of injury we do to them, every blow intended for another really wounds ourselves.

EXTENUATION.

"So Colonel Spriggins is dead?"

"Yes. He was a fine old gentleman."

"Always lived on terms of peace with his fellow men, I presume?"

"Always, except in campaign years, but I am sure the good Lord forgave him for what he said and did then."

HARD TO RATTLE.

"Pilkins is always calm and self-contained."

"So he is. I wonder what Pilkins would do if some one should run up behind him and yell 'Fire!' in his ear?"

"He would probably turn around with unruffled demeanor and say, 'I trust our efficient fire department will be able to extinguish the blaze.'"

HER INTENT.

"That dressmaker's model always wears a long wrap when she goes out."

"Here is evidently a sinister motive. She wants to cloak her designs."

CAN'T DO A THING.

"What sort of man is Pickelboff?"

"Absolutely helpless without a workscrew."
