In Most Cases Man Is Innocent Until Proven Guilty; Not The 'Bumper Pusher' Driver

A man is presumed innocent until proven guilty.

This great American principle of jurisprudence applies to traffic courts as well as criminal courts.

When a Michigan police officer issues a citation charging a driver with a violation of a traffic law, the driver has two options when he appears in court to answer the charge.

He may plead guilty and pay the penalty prescribed by law. Or he may plead "not guilty."

If he chooses the latter, he is presumed innocent until he is proven guilty. But there are a few conditions in the operation of this principle.

One of these conditions is provided for the driver who causes a rear-end collision, the driver who has been characterized as the "Bumper Pusher" on posters erected throughout the state by the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

The Bumper Pusher who is involved in a rear-end collision is prima facie considered guilty of negligence, by virtue of Michigan's Statute.

Section 402 (1) of the Michigan Vehicle Code states:

"In any action, in any court in this state when it is shown by competent evidence, that a vehicle traveling in a certain direction, overlook and struck the rear end of another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, or lawfully standing upon any highway within this state, the driver or operator of such first mentioned vehicle shall be deemed prima facie guilty of negligence."

The term "prima facie" is a presumption of fact or to establish the fact in question until overcome by competent evidence to the contrary.

In cases of rear-end collision, the fact that the collision occurred is sufficient evidence to establish that the driver of the vehicle which struck the other vehicle is guilty of negligence

Tranquil Arts Prove Soothing

Bothered by the pressure of modern living? — Take an art course instead of a tranquilizer, recommends Dean Philip N. Youtz, of The University of Michigan College of Architecture and Design.

"Art disciplines and refines the emotions, and converts them into a source of serenity and confidence instead of conflict and confusion," says the U-M dean.

"Possibly the arts offer us better national protection than our vast expenditures on defense," he says. "Our various foreign, foreign of drama, and theater, and musical groups have met with enthusiastic acclaim in all countries abroad."

"Our writers have contributed to world understanding through their books and articles. The art exhibits which have been sent overseas have drawn enthusiastic comments from critics of all nations. Perhaps the music broadcast by this globe has already been received by other stars and is now contributing to the harmony of the spheres."

Dean Youtz believes all students should take some courses in the studio arts.

"SUCH COURSES help to train perception, control the emotions, stimulate the imagination and develop manual skill," he points out.

"The arts are many and learning is slow, but every graduate from a university should have had the enriching experience of writing a poem, playing in a orchestra, taking part in a drama, or attending an art class."

"Without the emotional poise that art develops, and the sensitivity to new persons that artistic training brings to the eye or the ear, and the stimulus of new forms which awaken the imagination, a man is not educated."

The average work life expectancy for men at birth increased from 32 years in 1900 to 42 years in 1955.
