Senate Tables Vice Commission.

By a vote of 16-12 the senate tabled the Glanier resolution calling for a commission to investigate vice conditions in Michigan.

Gov. Ferris expressed sorrow when he heard of the senate's action. He has been in receipt of many communications from Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Saginaw and other places where vice conditions are being investigated locally. They disclose alleged conditions which, if true, would reflect greatly on various county officials.

The governor declares that if such a commission as was proposed by the Glanier resolution would work to days it would find whether or not the charges are true, and that if they were substantiated there are a number of county officials who would be ousted from office quickly on charges of non-enforcement of the law. A movement has been started to get a reconsideration of the vote.

WILLIAM R. WEBB

Mr. Webb served about a month as senator from Tennessee.

State Fish Industry Is in Danger. Officials in the United States bureau of fisheries are hotly advocating a change in the Michigan game laws to lengthen the closed season on whitefish and trout. They contend that the federal bureau has been greatly handicapped in its work of protecting, propagating and planting fish in the great lakes because of the Michigan law, which permits the taking of fish during the spawning season. With a coast line of nearly 2,500 miles, Michigan has jurisdiction over much the greater portion of the great lakes.

Recommendations made in the annual report of State Game Warden William R. Oates, of Michigan, a copy of which has just been placed in the hands of the federal fish culture experts, are approved by them. Robert S. Johnson, who is in charge of the fish culture division, stated that if the recommendations were heeded much of the present trouble being experienced would be eliminated. But the federal officials fear there is little chance of getting a longer closed season in Michigan. They claim that several large commercial fishermen are members of the state legislature, and are doing what they can to discourage new legislation.

500 MEXICANS ROUT 1,000 REBELS

GENERAL OJEDA'S BROWN MEN DRIVE 1,000 INSURGENTS INTO SOUTHEAST.

ADVANCE COVERED BY CANNON. FEDERALISTS WIN BATTLE.

Four Hundred Yaqui Indians Are Marching to the Aid of the Reluctant Mexicans.

Instead of waiting to be attacked by nearly 1,000 insurgent state troops, General Ojeda with less than 500 federal soldiers went out from Naco and defeated his opponents.

In three hours of aggressive fighting, popping the enemy's line with rifle and machine gun bullets, and spraying lead from shrapnel shells over hills adopted as fortifications, the federalists drove the state forces five miles to the southeast. The government forces returned victorious to the Mexican border town opposite Naco City.

Even the victors do not believe the fighting is ended, however, nor that Naco is secure from assault.

With the advantage of unexpected aggression, and possessing five artillery pieces, the little brown, barefooted soldiers defending the military honor of the new Huerta regime fought against seemingly overwhelming odds. Protected by the artillery, the federalists scrambled over the hillsides, began firing their rifles at the enemy appearing in the distance.

After three hours of desperate fighting, the battle stopped, the federalists under Ojeda holding the federal line. The state troops under Bracamonte and Galles were in full retreat to the south.

Jubilant over their victory, the federalists returned to Naco.
