

Emphasis On Strings In Farmington Schools

It is the hope of the administrators and music department of the Farmington Public Schools to have full school orchestras organized in all of the junior and senior high schools this year.

Miss Marjorie Mowat, a string specialist, will be responsible for organizing and training the string players who will comprise the major portion of these orchestras.

IN ORDER to establish a string section for each high school to be on its own, plans are being made to combine experienced string players with a week and beginners twice a week on a trial basis this year before or after school.

Viola, cello and string basses are available to the students free of charge with the understanding repairs will be made by the player when necessary. All of the stringed instruments can be rented from music stores on a trial basis at a cost very comparable to the flute, clarinet, cornet and French horn respectively.

The string program begins in the elementary school at fourth grade level as do other instrumental groups. Mr. Plovon, Mr. Friedman and Mr. Smith teach strings in the elementary school.

FALCON HALFBACK Bruce Charles is pictured above breaking through the Garden City secondary en route to Farmington's first victory in the practice scrimmage held last Friday with Garden City (black helmeted players above), and two other prep squads. The Falcon gridder plays host to the Plymouth eleven tomorrow afternoon, September 15, in a 3:30 p.m. non-conference tilt.

N. Farmington Raiders Ready for Grid Opener

After three weeks of solid practice ending with a scrimmage with Waterford Kettering, the North Farmington Senior High School Raiders are ready to open their 1963-64 season.

North Farmington which besides having their first senior class, also have enrolled 900 students making them a Class A school. With their entire varsity football team returning they look as though this could be one of their finest squads.

THE RAIDERS, who in their first year of competition had a 7-1 record, did an admirable job at juniors by winning 6 while losing 3. JIM ACITELLI, Al Voss, and Jim Pruett, the captains from last year's squad, were all re-elected by the players to again lead the team. Add Murry Switzer to this threesome and you have four Raiders who received post-season honors re-
