

Studebaker

"Such shipments mean Studebaker has the confidence of the farmer"

Every year over one hundred thousand horse-driven vehicles are sold by Studebaker. Over a million Studebaker vehicles are always in use. Stop and think what that means.

This enormous output means that Farmers—the men who know—depend upon Studebaker wagons to do their work.

And a Studebaker wagon never fails. It is always ready to do a big day's work—and to keep on doing it. There are thousands of Studebaker wagons that have been in service from 20 to 40 years.

A Studebaker wagon is a real business asset. Wheels, body, frame, axles and running gear have been tested and trusted by experts. You can buy cheaper wagons but they're not Studebakers, nor will they last like Studebaker wagons.

Whether in city, town or country, for business or pleasure, there is a Studebaker vehicle to meet your requirements. Farm wagons, trucks, contractors wagons, buggies, burreys, runabouts, pony carriages, be they and delivery wagons—each the best of its kind. Studebaker harness also, of every description.

Mrs. Eliza Utley returned home Tuesday, after a visit of nearly five months with relatives in Akron, N. Y.

A few pleasant days has brought on the spring fever and the rakes and hoes are now getting their annual polish.

That particular piece of gravel road along by the power house at the junction is about as bad as anything in this section.

A cement sidewalk, should be ordered built along the west side of Division street from the D. U. R. warehouse to the corner.

A few days work along the road side and about the buildings would improve the appearance of some of the farms hereabout one hundred per cent.

Owing to the fact that the weather hindered the arrangements so that the Warner Grand River Avenue subdivision was not ready for inspection last Saturday, the opening sale has been postponed to Saturday, April 26, two weeks from the first date. Meanwhile those Farmington people who desire to do so can select their lots by seeing Mr. Kennedy, the Farmington manager.

Logan Waller Page, director, Office of Public Roads, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., will give a gold medal to the school boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 15 years who writes the best composition on the repair and maintenance of earth roads. The composition, not to exceed 800 words, may be based on knowledge gained from books or other sources but no quotations should be used. Compositions must be submitted to Mr. Page before May 15.

Rev. E. S. Lee, the New Pastor

Rev. E. S. Lee is the name of the new pastor of the Methodist church in Farmington. Mr. Lee comes here from Saginaw, where he was assistant pastor of the Jefferson Avenue Methodist church. He is a very pleasant gentleman to meet and is an able minister.

Mr. Lee, Mr. Pierce, the Northville minister, and Rev. Gullen are all old friends, having all come from the same town in Canada. While Mr. Gullen is a Canadian, Mr. Lee is English and Mr. Pierce an American.

As Mr. Lee is unmarried the parsonage has been rented to and will be occupied by Mr. Payne.

Wanted

Chamber maid at once at the Owen House.

M. E. Church Notes

Unless the time proves inopportune the official board of the church will meet on Tuesday night of next week. Time and place will be announced next Sunday.

We welcome the invitation of the Farmington paper for church information and news, and intend thanking the editor in the most appropriate way, namely by using the opportunity as fully and as often as we can.

On Sunday evening we shall have a special song service, with singing of selected hymns. The pastor will give a series of talks during the evening and outline the history of each hymn selected with interesting biographical data. During the evening we shall render a violin solo.

On Sunday morning the sermon subject will be "The Veil of the Temple and Its Symbolical Significance."

Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

Obituary

Eleanor Courty Tolman passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. P. Botsford, Saturday night April 5, 1913. She was born in Queen's county, Ireland in 1831. At the age of three years she came with her parents to America and since that time has resided in this vicinity. In 1855 she was united in marriage to Ira Tolman of Farmington. To them were born three daughters, Mrs. Emma Bunney, formerly of Grand Rapids, who passed away 14 years ago; Mrs. F. P. Botsford of this place with whom Mrs. Tolman had spent the last eleven years of her life and Clyda, who entered the higher life at the early age of eight years. Besides the daughter, Mrs. Botsford, she leaves four grandchildren, Ira and Fred Bunney of Chicago, Owen Botsford of Shanghai, China, and Miss Elizabeth Botsford of this place; one sister, Mrs. Ann Kennedy and two brothers, Edward and James Courty, all of Farmington, besides other relatives and a host of friends.

WANTED TO SELL HIS HORN

Instrumentalist Seemed Rather Disappointed When He Heard His Playing Reproduced by Phonograph.

There is a well-known artist of the Metropolitan opera force who, before he knew he had a voice, performed upon the French horn. In this relation he tells the following:

"One day, as I was practicing upon the horn, I received a call from a salesman for a phonograph house, who endeavored to sell me a specimen of his latest and improved machine. I didn't want the phonograph and repeatedly told the man so, but to no avail. Finally he insisted that, in order that I might fully appreciate the quality of the records turned out by his house and the superior tone of the reproduction thereof, I should give a selection on the French horn. For some reason or other I obliged him. When next he turned up he had my horn solo on a nice, new record, which he immediately proceeded to play for me.

"As the sounds began to pour forth from the instrument the salesman noticed a frown on my brow.

"Is that me?" I asked, in response to his look of inquiry.

"Yes, sir."

"Really me, just as I played?"

"Precisely, sir; precisely. And now," said he, do you want to buy the phonograph?"

"No," I said, "I want to sell the horn."

"Judge."

HEARD HIS MISTRESS' VOICE

Ponto, a Bad Dog, Listened at Phone and Went Straight Home, as Ordered.

"I left my dog accidentally at a friend's house yesterday," said a young girl, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "My friend tried to get him to run after me, but he would not leave. He plainly held that I would soon return—that since I had gone without him I must inevitably return for him. And he stuck to the room where I had parted from him, feeling that such was his duty."

"Finally my friend called me up on the telephone.

"Your dog won't go," she said.

"He thinks you will be back, and we can't drive him out."

"Hold him up to the phone," I ordered.

"She held him up."

"Ponto, you bad dog, come right straight home!" I cried into the transmitter. Well, sir, he wagged his tail, wriggling out of her arms and beat it for the door. He was home in less time than I could have imagined."

GENERAL BOOTH'S GRAVE.

General Booth's grave in Abney Park cemetery, London, continues to be visited by people from all parts of the world. "Each day we get many inquiries for the general's grave," said the gate keeper recently. "People from Germany, France, India and America have already been here; in fact, they come from all over the world. Sometimes we have as many as fifty visitors to the grave in one day. All classes of people come." The other day while on a motor but in the city an Indian student who had lately arrived in London asked a Salvationist the nearest way to Abney Park cemetery. He said he had attended the general's meetings in India and wanted to pay homage to the memory of one who had done so much for his country.

DID THE BEST HE COULD.

"All I demand for my client," demanded the prisoner's counsel in the voice of a man who was paid for it, "is justice."

"I am very sorry I can't accommodate you," replied the judge, "but the law won't allow me to give him more than fourteen years."—Stray Stories.

KNEW HIS TROUBLES

Mrs. Henpeck—Why did you cry today at our daughter's wedding?
Mr. Henpeck—Out of sympathy for the groom.

MAKING SMALL CHANGE.

They had an ingenious plan for meeting a shortage of small change in the old days before copper coins existed. Until the reign of Edward I, the silver penny was the smallest coin minted in England, to the great inconvenience of the small purchaser of the period. But the difficulty was to some extent got over by the issue of pennies indented with a deep cross. The coin could then be broken up into halfpennies and farthings. Our first real copper coinage only dates from 1672, and until the time of Edward VI. farthings of silver were coined, growing smaller and smaller as the value of silver increased.—London Chronicle.

NOT A PROMISE.

"I saved that old maid from drowning."

"Did she promise to marry you?"

"No, she threatened to."

LIVES OFF HIS RELATIVES.

"Is this an absorbing play?"

"Yes, indeed. The principal character is a sponge."
