"Newspapers should be news-carriers, not news-makers. — There is truth and entertainment enough to print, without fiction or falsehood, and to publish the latter is to betray the former."
— C. Simmons
Culture looks beyond machinery. — Culture has one great passion—the passion for sweetness and light.
— Matthew Arnold
— Ralph Waldo Emerson

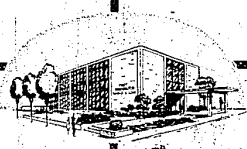

The completion of seventy-five years in the life of any enterprise is cause for reflection. It is also a good time to pause and look into the future.

The Farmington Enterprise can look back with pride upon a record of accomplishment. It can look ahead to a future of service in a dynamic community. In serving its readers, it provides them with timely news of things that mean a great deal to them—an awareness of what's going on in their own community.

We at Consumers Power Company are public servants too, providing Natural Gas Service for the comfort and convenience of people in this area. We join our neighbors, Farmington residents, in extending best wishes to The Enterprise on its 75th anniversary.
