NOTICES
IN MEMORY of Thomas E. Cairns, who passed away June 13, 1962. Since you have gone away from me, This life has lost its charm; And I go on from day to day Engulfed in sad alarm. But none-the-less I have a sweet breath That gives my heartache wings; Because my dear, I find you in so many tender things. You are in the stars that light the sky When night comes stealing through; And morning brings your kiss to me Disguised in blissful dew. The gentle breeze is your sweet breath That weaves a magic lace; And in each rose I look upon I see your smiling face. When moonbeams spray their golden glow I hear your voice; And when the sun's rays shine bright I feel you near; Instilling faith to journey on That you beside me, dear. And although stars really tell me I walk alone; I find you in the tender things And then you are my own. The loving wife, Elsie. 2-292. 38-1c
