Now's Time To Battle Crab Grass

Thousands of dormant crab grass seeds will sprout this spring... and scarcely see the light of day.

These infant crab grass seedlings will be the victims of forward-looking homeowners who apply pre-emergence crab grass killers.

In either the city or the suburbs, killing crab grass the pre-emergence way makes sense. One crab grass plant can grow to a three-foot diameter and spread as many as 25,000 seeds in a season.

Even in well-kept neighborhoods, thousands of crab grass seeds may lie dormant in the soil and emerge years later when the right combination of temperature and moisture occurs.

As any homeowner knows, the larger and older a crab grass plant becomes, the tougher it gets and the harder it is to eradicate. Growth-up crab grass can be killed, of course... laboriously, by pulling and chopping, or with repeated applications of powerful herbicides... but by far the easiest way is to finish off this weed before it even appears.

While pre-emergence killers may be applied anytime and remain effective for weeks and even months, early spring, before the lilacs bloom, is recognized as the ideal season to put these products to work.

Even though crab grass and similar weeds don't usually invade in overwhelming force until summer, early spring action keeps sneaky weeds from getting an unobtrusive start.

Each year more and more homeowners are applying crab grass killers that do more than just prevent crab grass. These products kill crab grass, as it sprouts, feed it with a balanced lawn food and also contain an insecticide to kill grubs and other damaging soil insects.

"WE CURE SICK FURNACES"

People like bargains. But a heating system should be bought on total comfort and service and not the lowest price. During our slow spring season, you can save many dollars on that new furnace or boiler replacement. It's natural to "put it off," but a new unit can't be properly checked out during the heat of summer. If you are going to change this year, obtain our bid now. Free estimates of no obligation. No heat lost during replacement. FHA terms and no money down.

COME IN AND SEE OUR POOL DOCTOR!
He can solve it!

Hint... all newly filled pools should be treated heavily with chlorine. This will tend to oxidize and destroy all organic material and also remove any iron in solution to the bottom of the pool. Use 4 gallons of chlorine for every 25,000 gallons of water. Feel free to bring in a sample of your pool water... the Pool Doctor will be glad to analyze it for you.
