For Your Country—Plant Trees.

There is a great movement under way throughout the United States today. It is the marshaling of public sentiment for the preservation of the forests. We used to think that the great American forests were inexhaustible. And they were for the generation in which our grandfathers lived. People of that day had all the wood they wanted to burn. But since their time we have been doing so many things with wood, besides using it for fuel, that forests of trees have fallen before the woodman's ax where one tree fell before. There are a dozen commercial purposes for wood which have developed today. It is used in the making of pails and of dishes. And absolutely acres of trees are felled each day into the great printing presses that turn out the great newspapers.

We are now using as much wood in a single year as grows in three, and there is only twenty years' supply of virgin growth in sight. It is this situation that calls for the application of the science of forestry. The national government through the department of agriculture at Washington, as well as eleven states each employing a trained forester, is actively engaged in it. The United States government has, for the last ten years, been busy acquiring forest lands until it now holds 165,000,000 acres, which it is carefully guarding and cultivating. Nurseries have been established for the propagation of stock for free distribution, and the newest feature is the creation of a patrol of one hundred men to guard against forest fires along the Adirondack railroads.

These are some of the government measures to meet a national crisis. But there is more for every-body who has waste land ought to be planting it to trees. It is such a simple thing to gather seeds from the trees on your own place and drop them into the ground. But you who do this will also serve your country as truly as those who answer its bugle-call to battle.—The Delineator.

Milford Teachers Meeting.

The teachers report a very profitable meeting at Milford. Below are some quotations gleaned from the lectures:

"Use a text book, but do not be chained to it."—Supt. McKone.

"When you do not know what to do, don't do anything."—Dr. Putnam.

"If the female teacher knows enough to come in when it rains, she should see to it that the children keep out of the storm."—Elliott.

"The male teacher should go to extremes. He should use a tooth brush at one end and a shoe brush at the other."—Prof. Henderson.

"Education of today means education of the head, the heart and the hand. A system that fails in any one of these is a failure."—McKone.

"When the heart of the home is in league with the brain of the school, it is well with the child."—Dr. Putnam.

Special Short Courses in Agriculture.

The Agricultural college announces that in addition to the short courses in agriculture, creamery management, cheese making and fruit growing, which have been given for several seasons past, two new courses, one in forestry and one in poultry culture, and also a second year's course in creamery management, will be given this year. These courses, with the exception of the Cheese Course, begin January 5. The Cheese Course begins February 15.

These are short practical courses designed for the young farmers and others who wish to obtain a technical training along their chosen line, but for various reasons cannot take a regular college course. A catalogue will be sent on application.

A Matter of a Kiss.

In the next issue of this paper will appear the cause and result of an oscillatory resolve in the days when they fought on the field of honor to satisfy a woman's whim.

"Lost New Year's Wager" is the title of this story. Lady Mary Courtenay, that dazzling creature, was billed to receive the kiss. Two men fought a duel over that kiss. One lost; the other won. Guess who won. Both dualists were heroes. They both won, yet one lost. That's puzzling, isn't it? Solve it for yourself by reading this entrancing tale in the next issue.
