On the front page is an advertisement relating to the Business Institute in the Breitmeyer Building, Detroit. A chat with Mr. L. C. Rauch, the president of the institute, would convince one of his ability to bring out the best in any of his students. Commercial law, banking, stenography, in fact, every branch of business in which remuneration is high is taught by experts. Huoson's and many of the other great firms make a point of engaging as far as possible students from this school.

Thinking of taking a business course should call and see the president.

While sawing wood at Fremont Barker's at Clarenceville, Barney Goos met with a very serious accident. As he went to lay on some small rails, the saw was moved too quickly and caught his left hand, mauling the fingers. He was taken at once to Dr. J. A. Miller, who was obliged to amputate two of his fingers. It is thought that the fourth finger may be saved.

Christmas Week Edition.

The Enterprise of next week will be issued on Wednesday instead of Friday. This will be done in order to give our advertisers the advantage of placing their business before the public in time for Thursday's trading, and also at the same time allow the Enterprise force an opportunity to get everything cleared away so they can spend Christmas at home, or with friends away, as they desire.

We will consider it a favor if our correspondents and all others will send in their news at an earlier date next week.
