

Growing Madonna College Expands Enrollment at Livonia Campus

When school opens for the summer and fall semester at Madonna College in Livonia, students will be making history. They will be entering the fully completed buildings of the 300-acre campus of Madonna College, situated on Schoolcraft and Levan roads.

The academic building will be housing some 1000 students. Thus far the enrollment has not reached its quota, so there are openings for those who are looking for a college education leading to a Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degrees.

Madonna College boasts a beautiful campus, well landscaped, and conducive to earnest study and to a refinement of aesthetic tastes. School officials say, "Situated midway between Detroit and Ann Arbor in a rapidly growing city, it can become the hub of community and inter-collegiate cultural activities."

"The aim of the college is to provide the best possible liberal arts education by developing women of strong moral character and discriminating intelligence, women who will know how to live as well as make a living, women who will understand the reality of God, of man, and of society," officials continued.

Madonna College offers these possibilities to the young woman:

- "A program that offers five-fold training—religious, intellectual, physical, social, and aesthetic—based on sound Christian principles;
- "Individual counseling through every phase of a student's activities—administrative, departmental, moderation of group interests, residence hall directors—all of whom devote sympathetic attention, still the effort toward the development of each student; and
- "Professional opportunities: in teaching, experience in the Psycho-Educational Center and 300 hours of directed teaching on elementary and secondary levels; in nursing, an education program in which theory is supplemented with unlimited opportunities for training at St. Mary Hospital on campus; in medical technology, one year of internship at St. Mary Hospital or at another hospital of one's choice.

"Most students find life on campus a pleasant one, filled with opportunities to make lifelong friends, to deepen their understanding of people, and to utilize their cultural and non-academic work outside the classroom as an informal laboratory that in effect extends their classroom activity."

The multi-purpose 180-room academic building is separated from the residence halls by a small lake. It faces Schoolcraft road. The two-story structure accommodates the academic, administrative, and science areas, each relatively independent units. Three wings of the ground floor running south to northern linked by a second floor super-structure which unites and integrates the various departments into a unified whole. Salubrious features of the sandstone and white cut stone building are:

- 100,000 volume library housed in a two-story northwest wing:

• 210-seat amphitheatre lecture room in the central wing;

• Education department which includes a curriculum library, audio-visual rooms, demonstration room, and classrooms;

• An art department featuring

ing specially designed studios for ceramics and sculpture; painting and drawing, design and lettering, crafts, and a faculty studio;

• Language department

with record rooms and language laboratory;
• Music department with audio-rooms, practice rooms, and two studios;

• Flexible classrooms.
