The Business of Beauty
Wigs In The News

BY HANA STRANG

With the revival of the wig as a fashion accessory, a whole new industry re-opened. Perhaps never before on this equal in modern history and it appears that the wig is not just a fad but here to stay. Women from all walks of life are busier than ever before.

An instant well-coiffed look becomes a necessity on numerous occasions and to milady's delight a fine wig gives her the tremendous freedom of time style and convenience that is most gratifying.

Wig departments have sprung up overnight at a fantastic rate. They are being sold at hat bars, cosmetic counters, dress shops and many other places too numerous to mention.

In most cases this is a non-returnable item and if the purchaser is lucky, she's in business.

However, like any other garment, a wig that is improper in fit, style and color can look ridiculous... Much like the great speaker who went to the banquet in overalls. It's embarrassing. So promptly the wig is thrust into a drawer never to be seen again.

LET THE BUYER BEWARE! If you don't know your product, go to a reputable expert to buy it. If you don't know hair, then know your hairdresser, for the subsequent servicing is just as important as the initial purchase. Choose your wig wisely and carefully.

Many fashion-conscious women are acquiring a wardrobe of hair goods and no one knows the difference except that they look smart and well-groomed at all times. If your best friend says "OOH! you got a wig!" then something is wrong. Take yourself with the wig to an expert and start consultation procedures.

The major decision is to select the type of wig that would be suitable to your individual needs and pocket book. Hand tied wigs in European hair are the very best and most expensive. Machine made wigs are less costly. Synthetic are the least expensive.

There are many qualities of hair but here is where your hairdresser can show you the difference in quality and construction. You must remember that no product is worth its salt if you cannot use it successfully. By the same token no price is too high if the product is completely usable and satisfying. This is common knowledge; you get exactly what you pay for.

In order of importance, comfort heads the list of essentials in being the proud owner of a wig. Necessary adjustments can be made to insure complete

Staman Ladies Say Farewell to Mildred Unks

Sixty-two women who live in Staman Acres in Farmington said farewell to Mrs. Mildred Unks, a 10-year resident of the suburb, at a luncheon May 1 in Hillside Inn, Plymouth.

Mrs. Unks is moving to Scottsdale, Arizona, at the end of this month.

The guest of honor was presented with an orchid corsage, a clock radio and a silver charm engraved with the date and "Staman Acres" as a memento.

The ladies were seated at tables decorated in yellow and white, with centerpieces of white snapdragons and yellow cushion mums.

Coordinators for the luncheon were Margie Wheeler, Matthe Hajduk and Margaret Syry.

Botsford PTA Sets Installation

Botsford PTA will see their new officers installed on Thursday, May 20, at 8 p.m. New elected officers are president, Barbara Pettersen; father vice-president, Pete Pettersen; mother vice-president, Frances Goldman; teacher vice-president, Mrs. Simpson; secretary, Edith Furshman; treasurer, Joan Young.

Walls will resound to square dancing music. Dancing to be performed by children from various grades. This is to be the last general meeting of this school year and promises to be a festive one.

Appreciation is extended to everyone who helped make the Botsford May Day Fair the outstanding financial and rousing success it was. Pete Pettersen and the entire committee extend "many thanks."
