"Excellence in higher education is the key to the further progress and continued prosperity of our country" was the view expressed by Solomon Bienefeld, 2962 3 Truist, candidate for Livonia member of the Board of Trustees of Schoolcraft College.

Bienefeld explained that, "In a modern, complex society each person is dependent upon his neighbors and his community for his own safety, well-being, and in fact his standard of living. The fact that we live in a society with trained technicians, professional people such as teachers, architects, doctors, lawyers, engineers, and dentists and skilled tradesmen permits us to enjoy a standard of physical and cultural well-being that would be impossible in any society lacking such a wealth of education and training. It is our duty to maintain and improve upon this level of prosperity, we must recognize the need to make education and training available to any willing and qualified person.

As attorney for Wayne State University Bienefeld is responsible for handling all law suits brought by or against the university. University administrators also look to him for legal advice on such matters as the rights and responsibilities of faculty, the rights and responsibilities of students, the obligations of the university to members of the public as well as the relationship between administration and students and staff and public.

Bienefeld attended Wayne State University College of Liberal Arts from January 1946 until August 1947 when he received a B. A. degree with high distinction, majoring in English. He then attended Wayne State University Law School and received a bachelor of Laws degree with high distinction in 1950.

After a brief period of practicing law, Bienefeld received an appointment as assistant professor of law at Wayne State University Law School in 1951. He attended Harvard Law School in 1953 and 1954 and received a master's law degree from that institution. Returning to Wayne State University, he continued as a full-time member of its faculty specializing in the field of property law. Bienefeld is married and has three children ages 13, 10 and 7. He has been living in Livonia for seven years and his children are all attending Livonia public schools.

Bienefeld is the vice-president of Livonia Citizens for Better Human Relations and has been a member of that organization since its inception. He served as a member of the Citizens Community College Preparatory Committee and actively participated in the study that led directly to the establishment of Schoolcraft College. For this and other reasons he has always maintained a special interest in the program of Schoolcraft College.

"I am most gratified with the progress that the present board of trustees and administration have been making since the college was established. They have been doing an excellent job and it is my hope to see that we continue the same rate of progress. Schoolcraft College unquestionably has a great future but it must be guided as competently in the future as it has in the past," Bienefeld stated.

JC Carnival Open Today in Livonia

Today is opening day for the Junior Chamber of Commerce spring carnival in Livonia at the corner of Levan and Plymouth Roads.

This year's carnival is expected to be the "best ever" according to Tom Brier, chairman of the committee.

Among the exciting rides is a parachute drop, including along with 20 other rides and booths. Refreshments will also be available and there is free parking near the site.

Another highlight will be awarding of a free bike to some lucky person Sunday, June 6. Everyone is eligible by dropping the coupon in today's paper at the Joyce booth.

The carnival will run from June 2 to 6 and is the principal fund raising project for the Joyce Clinic this year. Its receipts will help support such programs as the Automotive Safety Clinic, retarded children's projects, underprivileged children projects, and community improvement.

Ready is hoping that the community will take this opportunity to have a family outing and help assist the Joyce with its work in Livonia.
