MR. AND MRS. DONALD C. HAINES

Rosedale Ladies Name Officers

Irene Cameron is the new president of the Rosedale Gardens Women's Club. The installation of officers was held recently at Taylor's Towne House. Other officers for the coming year are: Dody Johnson, first vice president; Helen McCullen, second vice president; Eunice Day, secretary; and Jo Cole, treasurer.

Elisabeth Ehrenfeld Weds Donald Haines

Elisabeth Ehrenfeld became the wife of Donald C. Haines on June 12. Pastor Winfred Koelpin performed the candle-light ceremony at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church. For her marriage the new Mrs. Haines wore a white tulle gown trimmed in pointe-venise lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.

Margaret Ehrenfeld, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Mrs. Joseph (Karen) Penrod, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. John (Sandra) Quandt were the attendants. They were identical gowns of mint chiffon with lace bodices. Miss Ehrenfeld carried a basket of yellow daisies, while the attendants carried baskets of white daisies.

Joseph Penrod served as the bride's brother-in-law's best man. Seating the guests were Thomas Conrad and John Quandt. A reception for 200 at St. Paul's followed the ceremony. The bride has attended the Lutheran Seminary in Saginaw, and the Dr. Martin Luther College in New Ulm, Minn. Her husband, a graduate of Southfield High School, attended the Detroit College of Science and Arts.

The couple will reside in Monroe.

To Women It May Concern

By LOUISE KUDER

Having worked at the woman's desk for enough years to have written several thousand marriages it is seldom one stands out anymore. Unless of course it is something different.

There was such a marriage reported last week at a fashion show luncheon in downtown Detroit. It was held to announce the union of I. Miller fashion shoe authority with Sears, Roebuck and Company.

Beginning this September Sears announced they will merchandise a special collection of its shoes with the stamp of approval of the I. Miller design review board.

This is a first for I. Miller. They have a marvelous reputation for comfort as well as chic. They will extend their craftsmanship to a line of 25 styles in the Sears' own Featherlite shoes.

The shoes were very exciting to see—the design, material, color and heel height were all fashion news for Fall. The fact they will be available to the fashion-conscious suburban woman was even more interesting—and in a price range from nine to 15 dollars. Of course there will be the genuine alligator at $5 dollars if you can't live without it.

The collection which we were privileged to see and examine are all couturier styling, with exquisite workmanship. Real quality.

Of special note in the elegant new collection are the suede ghillies with lowered setback heels, gently rounded "self-aligner" toes. The little silk pump in a sumptuous fabric with a double arch of aurora borealis gems to light up the night; for the young, the open and demure "scoped out everywhere" look with the lowered museum heel and gooseneck bow; for the real fashion leader in the community who will adhere to the forecast of the rising hemline—this one will take to the lower and broader heel—a simple fashion axiom which helps a lady maintain an overall look of balance and proportion. Less spike look, but definitely sleek too.

Textures are definitely sleek too. Prints mimicking the ostrich to the genuine lively lizard alligator, patents (but, please not in color) and luxurious suedes.

Color was the most interesting of all. The biggest comeback I could see was in brown—they showed other colors, green tea, truffle, stillwater green, tristan red, sailor blue, tiger's eye—but it was filly brown, Persian brown; beautiful brown, woody brown—brown in silk, patent, and suede. I love it.

The fashion story was brought to us most authoritatively by Louise J. Gruber, Fashion Coordinator for the I. Miller Design Studio. She was a member of the central staff of Genesee—so fashion is this lovely lady's business.

She talked aside of her trip to Japan, leaving this week, where she will be traveling with The Fashion Group—combining business and pleasure. She makes her home in New York City but travels all around the United States, and the world for that matter, and not only knows fashion but IS fashion. She was delightful to interview for this reason, and another, her natural charm, and wealth of knowledge of her subject—good grooming in shoes. She says she has been her own best challenge because hers is a size nine foot and was trimly shod and chic, and of course, Featherlite.

MRS. MICHAEL PORTER

Kay Ellward Marries J. Michael Porter

Kay Ellward became the bride of J. Michael Porter in a candlelight ceremony in the First Methodist Church in Belleville July 2. The Rev. W. Harold Pailthorpe performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lester C. Ellward of Belleville, and the late Mr. Ellward. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Porter of Plymouth.

Given in marriage by her brother, the bride wore a bell-shaped floor length gown of peau de soie with chapel train. Her bouffant veil fell from a rose of silk illusion edged with pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses.

Maid of honor was Sue Ripple of Ann Arbor, a friend of the bride. She wore a floor length maize sheath with matching headpiece and carried a basket of white daisies.

The bridesmaids were Janet Sullens of Belleville, a friend of the bride, Mrs. Don Stevens of East Lansing and Dotti Nowak of Dearborn, sorority sisters of the bride. They wore gowns identical to the maid of honor's but carried baskets of yellow daisies. Hobart Hammond, of Plymouth, a friend of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Gerald Swain of Plymouth, brother-in-law of
