The 1985-96 community theater season is about to enter "stage left." Most of the community theaters in the area share two common problems. Number One: The theatrical groups in the area are literally too small. Number Two: Theater groups in the Observer circulation area need a definite home.

area need a definite home. Examing these two prob-lems is a semi-annual affair for old Wally. You might wonder, why bother, but to leave he problems unbounded is another way of saying that the situation is wonderful as the situation is wonderful and the situation is wonderful as more bright, hard-working group of people may roll up their sleeves and do something constructive about the perplexing problem.

thing constructive about the perplexing problem.

The Farmington Players, at course, are the only group that do not have the second of our two problems. They have an excellent home. Their theater is not the largest but it is away from academic, stiffling air of the educational multipurpose room. You can actually smooth in the Farmington or about a janitor coing into the principal in the morning to report the presence of a frayed but cluttering up the gymnasium or desecrating the auditorium. I'm sure all groups would he happy to double their present membership. Two offica 'you hear the old compliain,' this same peop le get stuck with those same jobs."
