GOING UP
'CURTAIN'
Blood-besplattered times theatrically will be upon us this fall season at University of Michigan with a full-length production of Shakespeare's "Henry VI." This classic drama of the Bard's is seldom done because of its three parts and involved historical structure. England's War of the Roses provides the violent source of material for "Henry VI."

The U. of M. Speech and Drama Department is going to present the production of Henry VI in three successive evenings. For those avid classic drama fans a special marathon performance with time out for lunch and dinner will be given on Dec. 4.

In checking the records over the years the U. of M. drama folk tell us that the complete "Henry VI" has been given only four other times in North America. The U. of M. production that opens on Nov. 17 will be the fifth production of the complete three part sequence in regional. No one to my knowledge has ever been brave enough to do this eight-hour presentation on one day.

"Henry VI" displays perhaps the most cruel, bloody period of English history. The reign of King Henry VI and filled with treachery, intrigue, the death of two kings, and baronial squabbling which led to the 30 year War of the Roses. Shakespeare's brilliance in recording these tempestuous struggles makes for wonderful theater.

"Henry VI," a remote slice of British history, carries a good deal of significance for contemporary life in America. The Stratford Shakespeare Festival announced its schedule for 1966 and two of the Shakespearean plays will be "Henry VI" and "Henry VIII."

The Stratford Festival version of "Henry VI" will lengthen presentation given by U. of M. Stratford's production of "Henry VI" will use a special adaptation prepared by John Barton. A new production of "Twelfth Night" is planned as the other Shakespearean production for the 1966 season. Negotiations are going on now for the artists to be involved in the coming season. Stratford reports that the 1966 season will be extended to 16 weeks.

Whether you purchase tickets for the Stratford "Henry VI" or the U. of M. full scale version, old Wally is certain that you will have a most enjoyable time getting acquainted with a seldom-seen Shakespearean play in the heart of 31 major works. Later in the year, the U. of M. group will be presenting Ben's "Peer Gynt."

"Peer Gynt" is Ibsen's everyman struggling to find his own identity. Another long, involved play. Seems to be the year for 30 year vintage drama at the U. of M. However, a serious theatrical venture is a welcome relief after a few insane comedies. You need such a balance to keep your sanity.
