Pistons Sponsor Platoon for Marine Corps

The Detroit Pistons announced Monday that they are sponsoring a "Detroit Pistons Platoon" of U. S. Marines.

The platoon will be limited to 75 qualified young men from Michigan and the Toledo, O. area. They will leave for recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego Calif., on Jan. 21, 1964.

Prior to leaving for San Diego, the unit will be the guests of the Pistons for the game with the St. Louis Hawks that evening at Cobo Hall. During halftime they will be introduced to the spectators at the game.

Plans are also being made by Pistons officials for a "Meet the Pistons Day" for interested applicants on a date to be announced. The neophyte hearers will be guests of the Pistons at the Philadelphia Warriors game on Dec. 29.

Interested and qualified applicants may enlist in the Marine Corps at any time during the next seven weeks to become a member of the "Detroit Pistons Platoon" through the Corps' 120-day delay program.

Two, three and four year enlistments are presently available to qualified applicants between the ages of 17 and 27.

Young men interested in becoming a member of the "Detroit Pistons Platoon" should contact their local Marine Corps recruiter for further information.

Ricardo Is Promoted To Top Chrysler Post

Appointment of John J. Ricardo as assistant general manager of the Chrysler-Plymouth Division, was announced by Robert A. Adams, vice president of Chrysler Corporation and general manager of the Chrysler-Plymouth Division.

Ricardo joined Chrysler Corporation in 1959 as a financial staff executive. After serving with the International Operations Group, he was appointed general manager of the Export-Import Division in 1960.

He was named vice president of Chrysler of Canada in 1961 and subsequently executive vice president of Chrysler Canada. Ricardo joined Dodge in December, 1963, as general sales manager, and in September, 1964, was given the additional responsibilities of assistant general manager.

Warns of Constant Danger Of Carbon Monoxide Gas

LANSING—You don't have to shut yourself up in a garage with a running car to be in danger of being killed by carbon monoxide gas. This invisible agent can attack you in a parked car, or in a cabin in the woods.

Albert E. Heustis, state health director, today issued a warning against the dangers of this lethal gas.

"This time of year always brings an alarming increase in accidental carbon monoxide poisonings. This is a totally unnecessary toll that could be eliminated if people would follow a few basic precautions," he observed.

Although automobiles are not the only source of the poisonous gas, they are the main one.

A defective automobile exhaust system is a likely source of poisoning from this colorless, tasteless, and odorless killer. If it is a potential coffin if fumes seep back through the fire wall or up through the floor, according to Dr. Heustis. This can happen even if the car is out-of-doors and moving. If it is parked, the situation is worse.

You should check your complete exhaust system at least once a year at a service station, and keep it in good repair at all times.

Another danger, Dr. Heustis

Air Conditioner Hints

leased the following pointers which can save time and effort in buying a room air conditioner.

Before starting out on a shopping trip, note the following information on a slip of paper.

- The approximate length, width and height of the room to be cooled.
- Indicate whether the room is on the sunny side of the house.
- Remember the width of the windows and the number and type; (that is, whether they slide up and down or open out).
- Bear in mind the location of electrical outlets in the room and whether these outlets operate on 115 or 230 volts.
- If the room is exposed on three sides or if it's directly below an uninsulated attic, mention this to the retail salesman.

There's an Upper Peninsula landowner who has four carefully replanted trees on his property, thanks to the alert eye of Norman Remington, Escanaba, plant specialist with the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

The stolen trees were being illegally hauled home in the trunk of a car stopped by Remington for routine inspection. The over-zealous digger said he had lifted the four "little birches" where he'd found them in the woods. Remington reminded him of the violations involved: Trees stolen from private property. No insect and disease inspection. No nursery license.

Rather than press charges, Remington convinced the man of the error of his ways. It was suggested that he replant them in the freshly dug holes under Remington's supervision. The ill-informed birch-lover was eager to comply. Especially, noted Remington when he found that his "little birches" weren't birches at all, but aspens.

Remington, a trained forester, works with the Michigan Department of Agriculture's plant industry division. Such tree checks are mainly to insure that plant diseases are not spread. However, as in this case, outright stealing is often prevented.
