Kay Greenbury celebrated her 9th birthday recently but we reported she was 13. Our apologies on the mistake.

Phyllis Borst won a turkey in the Earlybird league. Harris Bender and Al Riebe were the other two good providers in the Sunday night group.

David Lee brought down the first and largest deer on opening day in his hunting party. This won the camp pool for him on both counts. Since his dad and brother were members of the party also, this left Joanne and Claudia and Wanda with the perfect opportunity to throw a party which they did. Twelve young ladies got together for a slumber party.

Lynn and Gail Gruenwald had a double luncheon party as their birthday's are just a week apart. Lynn's guests were: Laura Antezak, Lynn Byington, Ann Williamson, and Karen Larsen. Gail entertained Mary Jo Iza, Barbara North, Kim Oddo, Beth Berger, Roxanne DeVold, and Linda Christie. Their father's birthday fell in the same time period.

AFTER A large Thanksgiving celebration, there were 18 gathered around the festive board, Joe Larson was scheduled to take off for Sweden on a business trip. Some of the houseguests lingered for a few extra days lest Irene be lonesome. She is busy practicing for her appearance with the Rackham Concert Choir when it presents "The Messiah" in the very near future.

Our first meeting with young Christopher Scott Campbell was a happy experience with that young man smiling and looking exactly like a "chip off the old block" as the saying goes. We refer to the paternal side of the family in this case.

Rita Gibes celebrated her twelfth birthday with her family. Joanne Craig had a girl friend from school over for dinner and to watch her blow out eleven candles.

FRANKY ODDE became 17 while accompanying his dad on their yearly hunting trip. They were up near Roger City.

Andy Scott was taken to the Cranbrook Museum for his tenth birthday. The whole family enjoyed the exhibits as well as the planetarium show, and his uncle, Phil Caprol, was here from Montreal to accompany them.

Charles and Rachel Shuler left with the children after Thanksgiving dinner at home to pay a visit to her parents in Ewart, Michigan. The children were treated to a preview of winter as three to four inches of snow had fallen before they left on Sunday. The trip could also be considered an anniversary jaunt for Charles and Rachel.

The Williamsons started out Saturday morning "over the river and through the woods to Grandmother's house" in Cleveland.

Eckerlys had Mike at home for Thanksgiving dinner and left the next day to weekend at Higgins Lake.

A little before the holiday, McMillan entertained the 40 members of Charlie's choir at a potluck dinner.

THE FRANKINIS had a wonderful week away from home and kiddies spending two days each in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Las Vegas. The city of the Angels was almost a lost cause as it poured rain the whole time, but San Francisco they found enchanting as they had an experienced guide to show them Chinatown, the cable cars, and all the famous tourist spots. In Vegas they visited five of the famous "dens", saw Frank Sinatra Jr., tried to see Dean Martin, but the crowd was too great, and rented a car to view such surroundings as Boulder Dam.
